

Hill 875 Captured

Win Prize After Bloodiest Battle

SAIGON (AP)—Battle-weary U.S. paratroopers and infantrymen captured Hill 875 today as their Thanksgiving prize after nearly five days of some of the bloodiest fighting in the Vietnam war.

U.S. commanders hoped capture of the hill signaled the end of the bloody, three-week battle of Dak To in the central highlands. But two hours before the final assault, other paratroopers killed 10 North Vietnamese in a short firefight a mile and a half to the north. And less than two hours after the paratroopers reported victory, a landing zone at the northeast base of the slope came under mortar attack.

"It seems at this time," a senior U.S. officer in Saigon said, "that the North Vietnamese have pulled out but we're not going to get overconfident yet. If there's not more contact for another day, we'll know they've pulled out. But the North Vietnamese 174th Regiment still has some strength and it could resuscitate itself."

He added that the jungle terrain on Hill 875 was "very tough and the U.S. troops are moving very slowly," mopping up enemy remnants on the hill.

Try For Talks On Mideast

Follow Up Formula's Approval

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Secretary-General U Thant is expected to follow up the U.N. Security Council's unanimous approval of a British peace formula for the Middle East by sending trouble shooter Gunnar Jarring to the area to try to get negotiations started.

Informed sources said Thant would name Jarring, a veteran Swedish diplomat who has served in the Middle East, as U.N. mediator under terms of the British resolution of the 15-nation council approved late Wednesday.

Key point of the resolution was a call for withdrawal of Israeli troops from territory it seized from Egypt, Jordan and Syria in the June war.

Israel has stressed that it will not give up any territory until the Arabs agree to direct peace talks. But the fact that both Israel and the Arab states raised no major objections to the British formula was considered a major step forward after months of futile bickering.

Israeli officials in Jerusalem welcomed the Security Council action as "the first step" toward peace.

Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser was expected to give authoritative Arab comment in a speech later today to the National Assembly in Cairo, his first public statement in four months.

The British resolution specifies that a vital factor in lowering tempers in the Middle East is withdrawal of Israeli forces from the lands seized.

Downtown Sedalia Livens Up

Sedalia's downtown business area is livening up with the leasing and renting of three store rooms.

In the Porter building, 404 South Ohio, the room is reported rented to Harry Plattner of Marshall, who it is reported will have a dress shop. He is expected to take over the building within a few weeks.

The old office space in the George Thompson Building, formerly occupied by Dr. F.O. Murphy, 318 South Ohio, who recently retired, is to be taken over by the Thrift Loan Co., of Jefferson City about March 1.

A new business, dealing in used furniture, has been started in the old Kipping building, Main and Osage, now owned by the Donohue Loan and Investment Co. Mary Shull is the owner and operator of this business.

Finish Testimony On MPSC Strike

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Testimony was completed Wednesday before a three-man panel on issues in the strike of electrical workers against the Missouri Public Service Co.

The panel is to make a recommendation to the governor and the state Board of Mediation within 15 days. Testimony from witnesses required nearly seven hours.

The 390 members of local 1464 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers walked out Oct. 30. The company provides service to 222 communities in western Missouri.

Candidate Will Use Own Image

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Richard M. Nixon says that if he seeks the presidency next year he will present his own personality for judgment by the people—not an artificial one.

"I'm not going to take any speech lessons; I'm not hiring any high-powered public relations firms," Nixon told a newsman Wednesday night. "When a man is constrained or artificial, he doesn't get through."

Nixon's comments followed an appearance on NBC's "Tonight" show where he told host Johnny Carson that his faulty makeup for the televised Kennedy-Nixon debates was a big factor in his 1960 loss to John F. Kennedy.

Nixon, already tagged as first choice for the Republican presidential nomination by delegates to the 1964 convention who responded to a recent Associated Press poll, got more good news. CBS reported its surveys show he's practically a cinch for the nomination if he wins the New Hampshire and Wisconsin primaries. And when Carson asked his audience to indicate whether they would vote for him, the applause meter was driven to its limit.

As for that make-up problem: Roy Voegel, makeup man for the "Tonight" show, revealed he probably will join Nixon's staff. A Nixon aide said Voegel appears to know how to erase the five o'clock shadow which Nixon seems to have on television.

On Viet Policy

Johnson's Supporters Are Sharply Divided

WASHINGTON (AP)—Whatever its impact on the country, Gen. William C. Westmoreland's optimistic assessment of Vietnam war progress has left senatorial critics and supporters of President Johnson's policies as sharply divided as ever.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., a spokesman for dissenters, said he has no doubt Westmoreland, the U.S. field commander, and Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to Saigon, "believe what they are saying when they report progress."

"But I can't believe we are making all that progress," Clark said. "Their reports are certainly in disagreement with those we get from intelligent, responsible newsmen on the scene."

Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., a strong supporter of Johnson's policies within the divided Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said in a separate interview he thinks Westmoreland and Bunker gave "very satisfactory answers" to questions about the progress in both military and civilian programs.

"I think their optimism is justified," Sparkman said. "From them and other reports I have received, I think we are on the road to attaining our objectives of giving South Vietnam freedom of choice and of stemming Communist aggression."

While Sparkman said he thinks the intensive wave of optimistic statements carried on in recent days by Johnson, Westmoreland, Bunker and others will increase support for the President's course, the critics did not seem to agree.

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., a dissenter, told his colleagues Wednesday he couldn't understand why Westmoreland was making speeches at home while some of the most critical battles of the war were under way.

At about that time, Westmoreland (See JOHNSON'S, Page 4A)

Long Road For Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic sponsors of the Senate Social Security bill that proposes record cash benefit boosts anticipate a tough conference with the House in the effort to work out a final version.

Some experts on the legislation believe differences between the two versions are so serious and numerous that a final agreement may have to wait until the next session of Congress, which starts in January.

But Democratic leaders say they are determined to get the far-ranging bill to President Johnson's desk before Congress quits this year.

The measure cleared the Senate Wednesday by an overwhelming 78-6 vote after six days of floor debate.

But a few senators, including Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, said they voted for it with the expectation and hope that the final product would be much closer to the House version.

The Senate made more than 100 substantive changes in the House bill passed last August. But the strongest disagreement with the House is expected to center in two areas:

—The much higher Social Security benefit and tax levels approved by the Senate.

—Senate softening proposed House restrictions on the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

The Senate measure goes along with the benefit levels—including a $70 monthly minimum, up 59 per cent from the present $44, and a 15 per cent general increase for others now on the rolls.

Tied in with this is an eventual $10,800 taxable wage base, a big jump from the present $6,600. This $10,800 base would go toward financing greatly increased benefits proposed for those retiring many years in the future.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., and his House Ways and Means Committee rejected the administration-backed levels after six months of close consideration earlier this session.

News Briefs

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP)—President Mohammed Ayub Khan inaugurated the $650 million Mangla Dam, symbolizing the peaceful end to the long dispute between Pakistan and India over the irrigation of the Indus basin.

The dam in Pakistan's part of disputed Kashmir state was financed by the United States and six other countries in addition to Pakistan and India. President Johnson sent roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman to the inauguration.

The dam on the Jhelum River—11,000 feet long and 300 feet high—was started more than five years ago after India and Pakistan signed an Indus Basin treaty in 1960. More than 15,000 men worked round-the-clock shifts to complete it a year ahead of schedule.

A network of canals will provide irrigation for a vast area of Pakistan which since the partition of the Indian subcontinent has been dependent on three rivers under Indian control.

SAIGON (AP)—The pacifist American Quakers aboard the yacht Phoenix apparently are returning to Hong Kong after being refused permission to deliver $6,250 worth of medical supplies to the South Vietnamese.

Vietnamese navy boats towed the Phoenix out of Vietnamese waters near Da Nang Wednesday, and reliable reports said she was sailing north-northeast today. One of her crew had indicated they might try to go to Saigon.

ROME (AP)—Industrial and farm workers in the Naples area struck for 24 hours today as Italy's leading unions launched a series of general strikes against the government. Public transport workers stopped for four hours out of sympathy.

The unions want higher pensions, rejuvenation of the debt-ridden state medical system and government programs to step up lagging industrial development and reduce unemployment.

Special UN Envoy To Turkey

Proposal For Further Talk Turned Down

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—President Johnson and U.N. Secretary General U Thant rushed special envoys to Turkey today as fears of a Turkish-Greek war over Cyprus increased.

Turkey announced early today it was turning down a Greek proposal for further talks. The Turkish government reaffirmed its determination to ensure the security of the Turkish Cypriot minority on the island 40 miles off the Turkish coast, increasing speculation that the Turks were on the verge of landing troops on Cyprus.

President Johnson, who intervened when war on Cyprus appeared imminent in 1964, responded to the new threat by sending former Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus Vance to Ankara with orders to proceed from there to Athens. Vance, now a New York attorney, served Johnson as a trouble-shooter in last summer's Detroit riots.

Diplomatic sources said they believed it unlikely that Turkey would attempt any military action against Greece, like it a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, before Vance's arrival.

Also heading for the Turkish capital and then Athens was U Thant's special emissary, Jose Rolz-Bennett of Guatemala, a U.N. undersecretary for political affairs.

The new crisis, part of a centuries-long history of strife between Greeks and Turks on Cyprus, developed after a battle last week in which 25 Turkish Cypriots and two Greek Cypriots were killed.

About 80 per cent of the island's 600,000 inhabitants are Greek Orthodox, the rest Turkish Moslems. The two communities have been in a state of armed truce since a U.N. peace force ended civil war in 1964 that followed the Greek Cypriot majority's revocation of special rights given the Turkish minority.

Greece denied she had sent more troops to Cyprus and proposed talks to work out measures to calm the tension and a joint study of ways to ensure the security of the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities.

The Turkish Cabinet, following a hard line born of Turkey's superior military position and political tension in Greece since the military coup there, announced after a six-hour meeting it would not wait for more talks.

Vandals Disrupt Service

It was reported Wednesday night that the Missouri Public Service Co., transmission lines in the western area had been vandalized causing several communities to have electrical service disrupted for a time.

Four poles carrying 34,000 volt transmission lines were sawed off. Their location was in Cass County on Route K, southeast of Pleasant Hill, snapping services to East Lynn and Garden City and rural areas in those communities. The incident occurred about 7:10 p.m. and services were restored in about 50 minutes by re-routing electrical service over other lines.

About 6:30 p.m. service was interrupted at Lake Lotawana and Lone Jack in rural areas of those two communities when insulators were broken when shot at on two 34,000 volt lines. Also service to Greenwood was interrupted for a time when insulators were broken on a 34,000 volt line serving that area.

Service was restored to their areas within a few minutes by re-routing service.

Maintenance is being handled by executives and department heads of Missouri Public Service while regular maintenance employees are on strike. The strike against MPG has been in progress for more than a month.

Failures Listed By Johnson

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson, looking back on four years in the White House, cites two big disappointments: Failure to achieve peace in Vietnam and to improve relations with French President Charles de Gaulle.

Johnson, four years in office today, does not regard these as personal failures, however. He feels, for example, that the Vietnam situation was largely inherited and he simply—as he told a news conference last week—faced the 1965 decision to “put up or shut up.” As for De Gaulle, he is mindful that much of the French leader’s displeasure with the United States grew out of his unpleasant relations with President Franklin D. Roosevelt during World War II.

The President was spending this anniversary at his ranch home near Johnson City, some 75 miles north of here. He and his wife Lady Bird flew to Texas Tuesday evening for a Thanksgiving holiday.

Looking ahead, Johnson’s hopes for the coming year include:

—Peace both in Vietnam and the Middle East.

—Substantial progress in coping with the crime problem at home.

—Revolutionary efforts to rebuild the cities and to promote better housing and jobs.

Johnson, who isn’t saying yet whether he will seek re-election next November, likes to quote former President Harry S. Truman as saying that personal, political fortunes don’t count. Most people believe, however, that he wants another term and has already launched his campaign, if unofficially.

Looking back, the President finds a great deal to be pleased about: His handling of explosive crises in Panama and the Dominican Republic, establishment of relative stability in the hemisphere, avoidance of a Greek-Turkish war over Cyprus, preservation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization despite obstacles thrown up by De Gaulle and agreements on a number of items with the Soviet Union.

Johnson still feels that his meetings last June with Soviet Premier Alexsei Kosygin at Glassboro, N.J., were very productive. But he believes Kosygin has serious problems, involving both his personal health and his political future.

When surveying his own difficulties, many of them stemming from the Vietnam war, Johnson takes some solace in the fact that the Communists have suffered some notable setbacks during his term of office, notably in Indonesia and in the massive destruction of Soviet-supplied Arab arms during June’s Middle East war.

Norton Says Johnson Will Be Hard To Beat

By JACK BELL
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Sen. Thruston B. Morton says President Johnson will be hard to beat in 1968 despite possible challenge for the Democratic nomination and his current low ranking in the polls.

Morton, former GOP national chairman, said some Republicans appear overly optimistic about unseating Johnson if he seeks re-election next year as expected. The Kentucky senator attributed the optimism to recent polls showing any of five potential Republican candidates could defeat the President.

“The President could get some breaks in the Vietnam war that would make it almost impossible to defeat him,” Morton said. “Even if the war situation remains about what it is now, he’s going to be a tough man to beat.”

Morton predicted voters may take their war frustrations out on Democratic senators and House members while deciding to keep the President in office.

He said he thinks Republicans have a good chance of capturing the House if former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama does not cut too deeply into their ranks in the South. The GOP would have to gain a net of 32 seats to accomplish that turnover.

Wallace has given every sign he intends to run on a third-party ticket in the general election after exploring his strength in some Democratic presidential primaries.

“It is difficult to judge the effect Wallace will have on our House candidates in the South,” Morton said. “I would expect him to run strong in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, South Carolina and possibly Georgia.”

“Anti-Johnson Democrats who might vote for a Republican presidential nominee and Republican candidates for Congress could go over to him and vote for Democrats for Congress.”

Some Democratic leaders say privately that if Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., runs as an anti-Vietnam war candidate in Democratic primaries Wallace’s support in the North would be deeply cut. They feel McCarthy and Wallace would split any protest vote against Johnson.

House Republicans meanwhile are cashing in on—literally—Wallace’s presidential ambitions.

Over the past few months the GOP Congressional Campaign Committee has mailed 175,000 form letters citing the “dramatic possibility” that Wallace, if he runs as a third-party candidate, could keep any presidential contender from getting a majority in 1968 and thus throw the election to the House, now controlled by Democrats.

The letters brought in $140,000—a much higher average per letter than other test letters that made no mention of Wallace, officials said. They are so pleased with the response that they plan to send out another half-million of the Wallace letters next year.

The House has been called upon twice before to decide presidential elections—in 1801 when it picked Thomas Jefferson and in 1825 when it chose John Quincy Adams.

In such a case, each state delegation votes as a unit. Thus the party controlling 26 House delegations could elect a president. Democrats now control 29 state delegations and Republicans 18 with three split evenly.

“But the Democratic majority in 11 states is down to one or two congressional seats,” Rep. Bob Wilson of California, committee chairman, said in the letter.

“We’re going all out in the critical ‘swing’ districts where control of the House will be decided—and, quite possibly, where the next president will be elected.”

Wallace embarked meanwhile on a final drive aimed at qualifying his American Independent party on California’s June presidential primary ballot. He must convince 66,059 Californians to register under his party’s banner to achieve the goal.

Acknowledging to newsmen in Sacramento Tuesday that he has only 20,000 to 25,000 registrations to date—with the deadline only six weeks away—Wallace nevertheless insisted, “We’re going to make it.”

Plea to Court On Toll Roads

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The State Highway Commission and the new Toll Road Authority asked the Missouri Supreme Court Tuesday to take immediate jurisdiction of a legal test of the turnpike law.

The test suit now is pending in Cole County Circuit Court, brought by two highway construction firms in an effort to check the constitutionality of the act. If it is declared valid the revenue bonds necessary to build toll roads can be issued and sold by the authority.

The commission and authority attorneys told the high court the case was beyond the jurisdiction of the circuit court and should be handled by the supreme court itself.

Ask Priority On Poverty, Race Woes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights urged today top priority be given to solving the problems of race and poverty which it said divide the nation “into separate, unequal and alien groups.”

In a 92-page report—accompanying another 40 pages of footnotes—the commission:

—Rejected the notion that Negroes, like past generations of poor Americans, can pull themselves out of the slums without help.

Negroes, it said, are not recent immigrants “but Americans of long standing. They were oppressed not by foreign governments but by a system of slavery supported by this government and its people.” The legacy of slavery continues in the form of racial segregation, discrimination and prejudice, it said.

—“The traditional exit from ghetto life has been blocked” because public education in Negro areas is marked by overcrowded, inadequate, segregated schools “which are stigmatized by the community.”

—Contended entry of Negroes into the construction trades—one of few remaining fields of well-paid employment not requiring much education—still is blocked by union discrimination not eliminated by government action.

The report, spiced with excerpts of testimony from commission hearings in four metropolitan areas, says the response of government at all levels “to deprivation and discrimination has raised expectations, but has too often been characterized by an inadequate commitment of resources” and by a failure to deal effectively with practices of segregation.

It found that “underlying these private and public actions have been attitudes within the white majority—attitudes based on fear, on racial prejudice and on a desire for status. While many of these attitudes are not overtly expressed they are nonetheless real and effective.”

Predict Troop Withdrawal

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland's prediction of possible U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam within two years evokes memories of a forecast antiwar critics have never let Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara forget.

Vietnamese army as a force effective enough to fight Communist forces with decreasing U.S. help.

But there is an important difference in the firmness of the predictions made by McNamara and Westmoreland, some four years apart.

McNamara forecast a major part of the U.S. military job could be finished within two years, by the end of 1965.

But Westmoreland speaks about a token withdrawal starting in about two years and hopefully becoming progressively larger. And the commander of U.S. Forces in Vietnam repeatedly uses the word "conceivably" in speaking of the beginning of the phase-down over that span.

Asked at the National Press Club Tuesday whether he felt uncomfortable about making such a prediction in the light of McNamara's forecast, Westmoreland replied:

"My statement is to the effect

it is conceivable to me that within two years or less it will be possible for us to phase down our level of commitment and turn more of the burden of the war to the Vietnamese forces."

On Oct. 2, 1963 the White House issued the statement that McNamara since has regretted. It came after he and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, then chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, had returned to Washington from a Vietnam inspection.

The White House press office announced:

"Secretary McNamara and

Gen. Taylor reported their judgment that the major part of the U.S. military task can be completed by the end of 1965, although there may be a continuing requirement for a limited number of U.S. training personnel.

"They reported that by the end of this year the U.S. program for training Vietnamese should have progressed to the point where 1,000 U.S. military personnel assigned to South Vietnam can be withdrawn."

Within a month, President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown and killed and an 18-month period of further coups and chaos followed.

By the spring of 1965, the South Vietnamese army was reeling, its reserves near the banishing point.

And in midsummer President Johnson set in motion a major American military buildup to save South Vietnam—a buildup now due to reach 525,000 men by mid-1968.

Optimists In Visit To Parkhursts

A tour of the fast growing Parkhurst Manufacturing Company plant was the program Tuesday afternoon for the Optimist Club following the luncheon meeting at noon at State Fair Restaurant.

William R. Parkhurst, president of the company, took the group through the plant which is in the process of changing over the operation from the old building to the huge new building.

Platforms are still being made in the old building for the trailers, the place where they have been made for the past 21 years, but soon this operation will be moved into the new section of the plant and the old area will be used for a planing mill, Parkhurst said.

The pickup racks, he went on to say, are still made of wood. There were steel sides ready to go through paint and this, too, will be moved to the new part. Right now, he explained, work is overlapping because of the moving into the new building, some of the work is being done in the old part and some in the new, where there is lots of room and the conveyors to move the steel sides. They go down to the prime, then the red is put on and they cure out for 24 hours. Along the side are pipes for drying.

The bridge above, he said, is to lift up the heavy loads. The platforms will be stacked on the rack stacker ready to go when the freight line comes in. The night crew, Parkhurst said, does most of this.

An interesting part of the Parkhurst plant is the spray room which is all white and remains white even though the bright red spray is used. The floor is wet to keep down the dust, and on the outside is a large pipe which filters the red paint out of the air.

This new plant was a three year project, Parkhurst said, and they figured it would be in production in 1968. They are, he added, on schedule.

In the plant is an assembly line where the frames of the body are formed, punched and assembled. Here, also, will be a new welding shop. The company keeps on hand all material needed, with an inventory of 300,000 pounds of steel.

Two large dormer windows will be built where the entrance office will be so the trucks wanting to enter the big door at the side may be seen. The trucks will drive in one big door and out the other big door on the other side. The parts room is upstairs. Small parts come in large containers and when the container is empty one side that fits on the container is simply turned around. The other side is red and on it is the word "empty." The case is then taken to be refilled, and the necessary parts are always on hand.

Tom McCully, office coordinator, then took the group through the spacious new office into which they moved less than two weeks ago. He also showed them the printing shop, where offset is used to print the directories and

Living and Dead Show Gray Pallor In Battle

By PETER ARNETT
Associated Press Writer
HILL 875, Vietnam (AP) — Hour after hour of battle gave the living and the dead the same gray pallor on Hill 875. At times the only way to tell them apart was to watch when the enemy mortars crashed in on the exhausted American paratroopers.

The living rushed unashamedly to the tiny bunkers dug into the red clay.

The wounded squirmed toward the shelter of trees blasted to the ground.

The dead—propped up in bunkers or face down in the dust—didn't move.

Since Sunday the most brutal fighting of the Vietnam war has ebbed and flowed across this remote hill in the western sector of the Dak To battleground. The 2nd Battalion of the 173rd Airborne Brigade went up 875 first. It nearly died.

Of the 16 officers who led the men across the ridgeline Sunday, eight were killed and the other eight wounded. Eleven of the 13 medics died.

The battalion took its first casualties at midday Sunday as it crested Hill 875, one of the hundreds of knolls that dot the ridges in the Dak To fighting region near the Cambodian-Lao border.

All weekend as the paratroopers moved along the jungle hills enemy base camps were uncovered. The biggest was on 875 and D Company lost several men in the first encounter with the bunkers.

A Company moved back down the hill to cut a landing zone and was chopped to pieces by a North Vietnamese flanking attack.

The remnants fled back to the crest of the hill while a paratrooper propped his gun on the trail and kept firing at the advancing enemy, ignoring orders to retreat with the others.

"You can keep gunning them down, but sooner or later when there is enough of them they'll get to you," said Pfc. James Kelly of Fort Myers, Fla., who saw the machine gunner go down after killing about 17 North Vietnamese.

D Company, hearing the roar of battle below it, returned to the crest of the hill and established a 50-yard perimeter "because we figured we were surrounded by a regiment," one officer said.

As the battalion was regrouping late in the afternoon for another crack at the bunker system, one of the American planes striking at the nearby enemy dropped a 500-pound bomb too soon. About 30 of the paratroopers were killed.

"A foul play of war," said one survivor bitterly.

From then until a reinforcing battalion arrived the following night, the paratroopers on the hill dug in desperately. Only one medic was able to work on the many wounded, and the enemy kept driving off the rescue helicopters.

The relief battalion made it into the tiny perimeter on 875 Monday night. In the moonlight bodies of the dead lay spreadeagled across the ground. The wounded whimpered.

The survivors, hungry and thirsty, rushed up eagerly to get food and water, only to learn that the relief battalion had brought enough supplies for one day only and had already consumed them.

Monday night was sleepless but uneventful. On Tuesday the North Vietnamese struck with renewed fury.

From positions just 100 yards away, they pounded the American perimeter with 82mm mortars. The first rounds slapped in at daybreak, killing three paratroopers in a foxhole and wounding 17 others on the line.

For the rest of the day, the Communists methodically worked over the hill, pumping rounds in five or six at a time, giving new wounds to those who lay bleeding in the open and tearing through bunkers. The plop of the rounds as they left the enemy tubes gave the paratroopers a second or two to dash for cover.

The foxholes got deeper as the day wore on. Foxhole after foxhole took hits. A dog handler and his German shepherd died together. Men joking with you and offering cigarettes writhed on the ground wounded and pleading for water minutes later. There was no water for anyone.

The day's pounding steadily reduced the platoon commanded by 1st Lt. Bryan Macdonough, 25, of Fort Lee, Va. He had started out Sunday with 27 men. He had nine left by noon Tuesday.

"If the Viets keep this up, there'll be none left by evening," he said.

The enemy positions seemed impervious to constant American air strikes. Napalm fireballs exploded on the bunkers 30

Say People Of Japan Back U.S.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Japanese ambassador to the United States says he thinks the overwhelming majority of Japanese people understand and support the United States and its position on Vietnam.

"We think you have no other yards away. The earth shook with heavy bombs.

"We've tried 750 pounders, napalm and everything else, but air can't do it. It's going to take manpower to get those positions," Macdonough said.

By late afternoon a new landing zone was cut below the hill. The enemy mortars searched for it but the helicopters came in anyway. A line of wounded trudged down the hill and by evening 140 of them had been evacuated.

The arrival of the helicopters with food, water and ammunition seemed to put new life into the paratroopers. They talked eagerly of a final assault on the enemy bunkers.

As darkness fell flame throwers were brought up. The first stubborn bunker yielded, and the paratroopers were at last started on their way to gain the ridgeline which they had set out to take three days earlier.

choice but to fight until an honorable cessation of hostilities," said Ambassador Takeso Shimoda.

He said a tiny, but violent, minority in Japan opposes both the U.S. Vietnam position and the Japanese government's support of the policy.

The ambassador spoke Tuesday night at the inaugural banquet of the Japan America Society of St. Louis. In his speech, he said that "despite the recent devaluation of the pound sterling, Japan has no intention of devaluing the yen."

Nuns In Special Blessings

By JOHN LANG
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two farming nuns have special reason to count their blessings this Thanksgiving. The coops on their small turkey farm are two-thirds empty. Business has been good.

Actually, the farming sisters can look back on better times when they made more money for the church. They raised hogs, until the city made them quit.

"We are thankful," says Sister Mary Hilary, "because the 200 turkeys we sold means money for our order, the Sisters of the Holy Family."

Sister Anna Maria explains, "Our flock is one of the major sources of income for our mother home. We get money where we can, for teaching and from selling fruitcakes and from benefactors, too, of course. But our selling turkeys helps."

The two nuns live at the edge of the city on their little farm named St. Ann Hatchery. Next door is a children's home run by other sisters of their order. For company they have a calico cat and three dogs of assorted sizes.

"It's the prowlers, we've got all these dogs because of prowlers," says Sister Anna Maria. "You see where the windows are broken out in the turkey shed. That's where someone was trying to steal our turkeys."

"Why, one time we heard this noise in the kitchen and went to see, and this man had eaten a whole fruitcake and wrapped himself in a tablecloth and gone to sleep in the corner. It was his snore that woke us. We called the police."

But isn't it odd that two nuns should be living at a farm raising turkeys?

Sister Mary Hilary smiles. "Actually, we used to have a dairy, but we couldn't make a go of that. Then we raised hogs and they made the most money for us. But the city spread out to us here on Chef Menteur Highway and we had to get rid of the hogs."

Still in the ramshackle shed at the sisters' hatchery are 100 white turkeys strutting with wary eyes. Even they have some cause to be thankful.

"These turkeys," says Sister Anna Maria, "are left over from the 200 we sold for the Thanksgiving market. They've got a couple more months to live."

"We'll sell them at Christmas."

Sale of Savings Bonds In County

October Savings Bonds sales totaled $59,254 in Pettis County, according to Henry Harris, chairman of the local Savings Bonds Committee.

The report stated the October sales total brought Savings Bonds sales to $545,237 for the past ten-month period. "Investments in U.S. Savings Bonds tend to curb inflation, and I urge all our citizens to continue their investments," Harris said.

Want Names Of Draft Dodgers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Draft chief Lewis B. Hershey wants local boards to forward to Washington the names of any person who destroys or throws away his draft card.

Hershey's order to local Selective Service System boards preceded his recommendations that draft deferments be taken away from college students who don't carry their registration cards or who interfere with the induction process.

Although issued Oct. 25, the request to local boards for information wasn't made known by Selective Service spokesmen until Tuesday. The recommendations on reclassification of deferred students were issued Oct. 26.

In a speech to his colleagues, Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., charged Tuesday that some local draft boards are reclassifying students because they belong to organizations board members don't like.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Although I have a few problems I could write about I would rather write a letter of thanks and ask you to print it on Thanksgiving Day.

I want to thank you, Ann Landers, for the young girl who had a child out of wedlock and can now face life because of the sound counsel and moral support she received from you.

I want to thank you for discussing openly problems involving homosexuality and venereal disease. Your frank, enlightened point of view has given hope and help to thousands of people who are struggling to hold their heads up.

I want to thank you for preventing heaven knows how many miserable marriages and for keeping together countless other marriages that surely would have fallen apart without your realistic, down-to-earth advice.

I want to thank you for reminding parents that discipline is a special kind of love and that they owe it to their children to insist on high standards and to set a good example.

I want to thank you for the thousands of miles you travel each year to talk to our teenagers.

I want to thank you for the encouragement you have given the mentally ill and the alcoholic. In many cases you have been the best (or only) friend these people have.

I want to thank you for your beautiful sense of humor and for showing us through your excellent column that our problems are not the only problems in the world. — R.J.R.M.M.

Dear R.J.R.M.M.: A wise friend once told me that praise, like perfume, should be inhaled not swallowed, so I'm inhaling your letter, which is a nice balance for the one which follows.

Dear Ann Landers: Who appointed you God? Some of your answers are so stupid you made me sick.

For example, you are always knocking people who drop in unexpectedly. Your favorite phrase is, "If you are unexpected and uninvited, you are also unwelcome." Who are you to write rules of conduct for the whole human race? It so happens that I love company anytime. I consider it a compliment that friends feel so warmly about me that they just come over on the spur of the moment.

Recently, you were asked how to get guests to go home when they have a few drinks and don't want to leave. You said you just stand up and say, "Good night folks. Tomorrow is here."

I can't imagine anyone being so rude as kicking guests out of the house. I'll bet you haven't got a friend in the world. — NO ADMIRER OF YOURS

Dear No Admirer: Thank you for your letter. I appreciate any honest expression whether it's for me or agin' me. A letter like yours keeps me from getting well-headed — and we all need a little deflating from time to time. Thank you for writing.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Strive To Avert A Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top administration officials, fearing a major steel strike could hurt President Johnson's expected re-election bid, hope industry-union talks about a no-strike plan meet with success.

But despite their hopes, administration officials forecast there's little chance the controversial plan—which would involve submitting any unresolved issues to binding arbitration—can win union approval.

And despite the political implications a crippling steel strike might raise, government officials say the administration is maintaining a hands-off attitude toward the negotiations—frankly because it feels any publicity attending a move on its part would surely kill the proposal.

The AFL-CIO United Steel Workers Union, headed by I. W. Abel, may discuss the arbitration proposal at a union executive board meeting in Miami Beach next month. But indications are that opposition within the union is making the issue too hot to handle.

Curb for False Fire Alarms

Nearly 200,000 false alarms are turned in every year in the nation's cities, both large and small. At an average cost of about $150 for each alarm, this adds up to a $30 million annual waste.

This is the monetary cost. Last March, a New York City fireman lost his life responding to a false alarm. Even more tragic, four children perished in a fire that same month because the nearest company was out answering somebody's satanic urge to cause a little "excitement."

New York firemen have been plagued with as many as 32,895 such practical jokes—one out of every four calls. The situation was even worse in Chicago.

According to the National Fire Protection Association, there were 35,504 false alarms in that city in one year, or 27.7 per cent of all alarms. The percentage was comparable in other cities.

Whatever varied reasons people have for turning in false alarms, they have one thing in common: They don't want to get caught. Up to now, they rarely have been. But a new device called the "Alarm-Alerter" promises to change things.

It consists simply of a pressure can of Freon gas, the same stuff used in household spray cans, and a powerful signal horn. It can be mounted to any standard fire alarm box and is protected by a metal cover.

LBJ Set Limit on Devaluation

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Inside fact about the British devaluation of the pound is that President Johnson was worried about it and gave his reluctant approval, provided it was not devalued lower than 15 per cent. This is why the pound was dropped from $2.80 to $2.40, or 14.3 per cent.

Further inside fact was that the President was sore as blazes at Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., the supposedly loyal Democrat, and Rep. Jerry Ford, R-Mich., leader of the GOP opposition, for conspiring together to block the President's request for a tax increase. It was failure to increase taxes, the economists had warned the President, which inflated our economy, pushed up interest rates and sucked capital out of England.

Rates Go Up

Today interest rates are so high that the government is now paying the unprecedented rate of 5.75 per cent on U.S. bonds.

When the final story of British devaluation and its consequences is written, Congressmen Mills and Ford will have to share part of the blame.

What the final consequences will be worries the experts who watched the Great Depression of 1929 build up until it spread creeping paralysis around the world. Some of the same factors are present today, though they are coupled with certain favorable factors not present in the early 1930s. Here are some of them:

Factor No. 1 — British devaluation of the pound is not unlike the closing of the Kreditanstalt in Vienna in 1931. When it closed, the Rothschilds in Paris and the Federal Reserve in New York, with the Bank of England, rushed funds to its support. But it did no good. Bank after bank in Central Europe folded.

Reason was that Vienna was the capital of an empire which ceased to exist, just as London is now the capital of an empire which has ceased to exist. The great Austro-Hungarian empire had been chopped up after World War IV into the separate republics of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Yugoslavia and Hungary. Vienna, left alone, was unable to support itself.

Likewise, the vast British empire was dismembered after World War II, with India, Burma, Ceylon, Malaysia, Cyprus, Seuz, the African colonies, all becoming independent, and Canada, Australia and New Zealand becoming financially aloof.

However, London, though shorn of its trade and tribute, managed to maintain one of the hard currencies of the world, used throughout the sterling bloc as the medium of exchange. Now almost every country in that trading area will have to follow the British pound by devaluing.

Factor No. 2 — Congress is moving toward a tariff hike exactly as it did in the Smoot-Hawley days when a Republican Congress presented Herbert Hoover with the stiff tariff increase which disastrously disrupted the trade of the world.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The Girl Scout office formerly located on the first floor of the Pettis county court house has been moved to the front office of the County Engineer on the southeast corner of the second floor.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Henry Heitman, former Sedalian, who for the past few years has been located at Lake City, Fla., has returned here to accept a position at the Yunker-Lierman Drug store on East Third street. Henry, before leaving this city, was in the employ of the Y and L and his friends in Sedalia will welcome him back.

—1927—

Lawrence Laupheimer, one of Sedalia's best known residents, who for a long term of years was engaged in the hide and fur business on West Main street, has purchased the West Side Grocery, 410 south barrett avenue. The business had previously been conducted by E. R. Morris.

A snake has no movable eyelids. Its eyes are protected by clear, horny plates, which are shed with the skin.

Pulling the alarm activates the horn, which gives off a three-minute blast that can be heard for a city block.

The Alarm-Alerter was tested on nine selected boxes in Philadelphia that had registered 147 false alarms. At the end of the year, the count had plummeted to only 12.

New York tried the same kind of spot test in one notorious section. In one month, the false alarms fell from 50 to 10. More important, in seven of the 10 cases, the guilty parties were apprehended.

Excitons: Exciting

The electronics age has hardly arrived and already scientists are looking beyond it into an entirely new field of solid state physics—excitons.

Excitons are similar to electrons, the tiny particles which carry an electric charge and make possible television, high-speed computers, etc. But excitons don't conduct electricity. They have a potentially more useful property, say Du Pont researchers: They can transport light energy.

Fantastically tiny excitonic-powered devices are envisioned which may someday replace many of the functions now being performed by electronics.

Today, excitons are laboratory curiosities. But so were transistors only a decade or so ago.

Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., the Republican leader, has dropped his current drive for tariff increases, but only temporarily. He promises to renew the drive after Christmas.

Factor No. 3 — U.S. aid for foreign countries has just been chopped to the lowest point in its history. This has done two things.

It undermines American influence for peace, as illustrated by the threatened war between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus. When the United States was giving substantial aid to Turkey, we had more influence for peace. Now we have less.

Second, the curtailment of aid will curtail U.S. exports. Eighty per cent of U.S. aid went to finance U.S. goods shipped abroad. These will be cut back in exactly the same way U.S. loans and credits to Europe were cut off in 1930, thereby causing economic chaos in those countries we were subsidizing.

Factor No. 4 — The life of the Export-Import Bank is jeopardized by the hamstringing amendments of Rep. Paul Fino, R-N.Y., one of the few Italian-American undesirables in Congress. He would cramp the power of the executive to make loans, by delegating much of the power to Congress. It's another isolationist move similar to the Hoover crackdown on trade which contributed to the Depression.

Factor No. 5 — The stock market is overheated. Values of some stocks are far out of line with earning power, and have been driven up purely by speculation. There has been so much trading that brokerage houses can't keep up with customers' orders.

Ken Galbraith, famed Harvard economist, has claimed there is such poignant memory of the 1929-30 crash that investment houses will lean over backward to avoid repetition. But today the investment counselors are all young men who have no idea of the tragedy that came out of the last big crash.

GNP At Peak

On the other hand, the gross national product of the United States is at the highest point in history—approaching $800 billion; and the monthly GNP alone equals two-thirds of the annual GNP of all Latin America. Employment is also high. Unemployment increased slightly during the past two months, but even so, 3 million unemployed is insignificant for a country of this size.

Finally, exports are at an all-time high. We are shipping abroad this year $30 billion as against $26.5 billion of imports—a very healthy margin. But devaluation of the pound will reduce this drastically. And if an isolationist, short-sighted Congress begins monkeying with the tariff and the Export-Import Bank's power to finance exports, we may see these sales go into a tailspin.

These are some of the factors the United States faces following devaluation of the British pound.

Democrat Pickups

A woman, whose son is a football player, told about going to a game in another town one real cold night recently. She wore boots and wool socks, and all the clothes she could possibly get on otherwise and still be able to walk, something that came down over her ears, a stocking cap and then covered herself with two blankets. She kept pulling the stocking cap lower and lower and her scarf higher and higher until all that could be seen was her eyes. She nearly froze, but she warmed up after the game because the Sedalia team won. — H. L.

BANNED BOWLING

Bowling on the green is a popular sport in England and Canada. At one time, it was banned by English monarchs who feared it would divert men from the practice of archery.

FLYING FROGS

Certain parts of Africa and southern Asia have "flying frogs." Membranes between their toes, spread rigidly to give buoyancy, enable these rare amphibians to jump 50 feet.

Viet War Is Opening Door For Radicals' Pet Ideas

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)

If the war in Vietnam ended tomorrow, it evidently would be a keen disappointment to many American radicals who today are assailing it fanatically.

Radicals in attendance at the New Politics conference in Chicago two months ago told this reporter they saw the war as the greatest opportunity in many years to advance materially the radical social causes they and others espouse.

Their basic point is simple:

They believe that this war, as no other in recent history, has stirred such controversy that it has loosened the fabric of American society, has made assault upon established government authority respectable, and thus has opened the door to radical change on many fronts.

Talking of this in Chicago, one radical saw the discontent over the war as the most golden moment since the Great Depression of the 1930s fanned the flames of radicalism in a then bewildered nation.

Radicals who hold to this view plainly welcome the turmoil of demonstrations and the torrent of criticisms which have plagued the Johnson administration since our heavy military entry into Vietnam. They are usually in the vanguard of such stirrings as the sometimes violent "confrontation" at the Pentagon Oct. 21.

Were the war to end suddenly, its loosening effect upon U.S. society would be lost to ambitious radicals who recognize that they seldom make much headway except in times of great national stress.

They might then try to throw greater weight into the urban racial struggle—which is tearing the American fabric in other ways.

Here the more thoughtful U.S. radicals are wary, however, since the New Politics conference showed them dramatically that black power radicals are willing to allow white participation in their undertakings only on black extremists' terms.

The white radicals who today privately welcome the ripping effect of the Vietnam war have another deep concern.

They concede that they are glad to have the chance to "use" the war discontent of millions of ordinary, nonradical Americans to further their own drastic antiestablishment objectives. But they worry that they themselves may be used by dedicated anti-American Communist elements in both the antiwar and black power groups.

Many nonradical U.S. observers, fearing to be charged with resurrecting the wild-swinging anticommunism of the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin, go very light in applying the Red label to anything done these days in the name of the New Left. The cliché of the day is that New Leftists regard old-style communism as "square" and could not care less.

But one influential radical who attended the Chicago meeting on New Politics said privately it would be a serious mistake to underestimate the labors of dedicated Communists at that conference.

This man, himself stoutly anti-Vietnam war and antiracial discrimination, sees many of his radical fellows serving as dupes for anti-American Reds who work cleverly and persistently in the emotional chaos engendered by these controversial issues.

The "innocent" radicals, then, warmly hail the opportunity for massive change they think Vietnam and the racial struggle have brought. To the great American middle, their goals seem wildly unrealistic. But, in a curious way, they are pro-American. Many extremists, black, Red, or both, strike them as just the opposite.

"GREAT NEWS—THE PRESIDENT GOT THE BIG PART OF THE WISHBONE!"

The Rocky Road Ahead for Britain

By DON OAKLEY

The British, said a French observer some years ago, are marching to economic ruin in perfect discipline while the French are enjoying prosperity in utter anarchy.

This fairly described things in 1949, the year Britain last devalued the pound, when it was still in the midst of its postwar austerity program, and long before De Gaulle brought stability to French politics.

Eighteen years later, Britain still faces the unsolved problem of how to sell enough to other countries to pay for the imports needed to maintain 54 million people on a nonself-sufficient island smaller than Oregon.

Thus the latest devaluation of the pound, a step designed to make British goods cheaper and hence more salable abroad.

But the political order which the Frenchman referred to and on which the British seemed almost to hold a patent of invention can no longer be taken for granted.

Not only is Prime Minister Harold Wilson under fire, from his own Labor party as well as the opposition Conservatives, but resurgent nationalism is straining the seams of the not-so-United Kingdom.

A bomb blast, jeers from hundreds of demonstrators and signs proclaiming, "Republic, Not Royalty," greeted Lord Snowden, husband of Princess Margaret, as he arrived in Cardiff, Wales, the other day to attend a conference to plan celebrations for the formal investiture of Prince Charles in 1969.

The Welsh, or at least some of them, want no part of an English Prince of Wales.

At the other end of the island, the surprise victory of a member of the Scottish Nationalist party in a parliamentary by-election is being viewed as a sign of growing popular support of the party's demand that Scotland once again be an independent country.

The party, which wants a separate seat in the United Nations for Scotland, has reportedly grown in membership from 2,000 to 60,000 in five years.

In both cases, the inability of the central government in London to solve Britain's continuing economic crisis is a factor in this revival of always-latent regionalism.

Britain, alone of the great industrial nations, has seen its international financial strength deteriorating even as the general level of world prosperity has risen. Its integration into the European Common Market, which would be an accomplished fact by now but for the obstruction of President De Gaulle, becomes more urgent than ever.

A Nice Warm Freezer

So you laugh at the idea of selling iceboxes to Eskimos? The Royal Canadian Air Force weather station at Alert, the nearest settlement to the North Pole, has had to install a freezer to keep things warm—warmer than the outside, that is.

The walk-in freezer is insulated to maintain a constant inside temperature in the face of 100 m.p.h. arctic winds and weather that sometimes dips to minus 60 degrees.

Thyroid Deficiency Will Affect Unborn Baby

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

(Second of three related columns.)

Q—What effect does the thyroid have on a woman's menstrual periods and her fertility? If a woman is taking propantholol and becomes pregnant, would the drug affect the baby? Would there be any danger of a miscarriage? Will benign, or colloid, goiters or fetal adenomas of the thyroid become cancerous if not removed?

A—A thyroid deficiency may cause the menstrual periods to be more frequent and more profuse than normal. Since propantholol interferes with the production of thyroid hormone and can pass through the placenta to the baby's blood, the baby would suffer from thyroid deficiency. If this were severe enough, it would cause a miscarriage.

Benign goiters, including the colloid type, do not become cancerous. Adenomas may do so, but this is the exception rather than the rule.

Q—Is it true that a toxic goiter is caused by stress and strain over a period of years? Is it possible for a person with myxedema to develop a toxic goiter later in life? Why would a BMR show the thyroid function to be below normal and the next week a radioactive iodine test show a toxic goiter? My sister, who was taking tranquilizers and thyroid pills for a long time, was later found to have a toxic goiter. What are her chances for a complete recovery?

A—Emotional Stress may be a factor in causing a toxic goiter in a person with an unstable endocrine balance. A person with myxedema (thyroid deficiency) would not develop a toxic goiter but could show the symptoms of this disease if given too large a dosage of thyroid extract.

There are many sources of error in laboratory tests and when one or more tests are inconsistent with other clinical findings, they should be repeated. Assuming, however, that both the basal metabolic rate and the radioactive iodine uptake results were correct, the only conclusion would be that the patient had taken an enormous overdose of thyroid.

Anyone who has a toxic goiter can, with skillful treatment, make a complete recovery, but, with even the best of treatment, the condition may recur and further treatment may be required.

Q—I have an inward goiter. Could it make my pulse irregular? Is a goiter operation dangerous in a person who is 68?

A—An inward or toxic goiter would make your pulse very fast and cause palpitation and irregularity. With modern surgical techniques a goiter operation, if needed, is less dangerous at any age than failure to control the disease.

WHICH TO BUY

There are many kinds of "munch-able" foods hitting the market each week. The question now isn't "to snack or not to snack" rather it is "which snack to choose?"

In summertime there are picnics and barbecues. In fall and winter, there are seasonal parties like Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's. And, by spring, we're back to outdoor meals again. So, year 'round the call rings out for foods that are portable, appetizing and convenient.

Snack foods answer that call with enthusiasm! This up and coming category of foods include a variety of potato chips, corn chips, cheese curls, pretzels, popcorn, puffed snacks, seasoned and filled crackers. Others that answer the call are roasted and dry-roasted nuts, dips, cheeses, snack meats, ice cream products and candies.

Teens are another important aspect of this market. A recent poll shows that teenagers are spending more money — about 18 billion per year. Much of their allowances and earnings go for snacks, about one-twentieth to three-tenths on candy alone. The American Hobby Association's study of youngsters from 13-19 indicates that their favorite snacks are potato chips, peanuts, popcorn, cookies, ice cream, and candy.

Thus, as the demand for snacks increases, the number offered also goes up. Today over 400 manufacturers are using their ingenuity to attract your attention. The packages, the shapes, the advertising, and even the names of these products are new and novel. Some of the newest are: Skis, surfers, canoes, sizzles, snackadoos, fiddle-faddle, munchums, pokes and on and on. These sweet and salty treats that used to be reserved for holiday occasions are fast becoming an accepted part of the American daily diet. In fact, their sales are mounting to $250 million per year.

Potato chips are the biggest seller, nuts rank second. These top two are followed by corn chips, pretzels, snack crackers, and puffer snacks preferred by consumers in that order.

Cellophane bags seem to be the preferred packing material, but the trend is moving toward the newer boxes. One big reason is because, for instance, potato chips will last three weeks in cellophane and up to six months when packaged in a box.

Be prepared for more flash, dash, and color in your supermarket's snack department. As you push your cart through this section, there may be dozens of tempting, new munchables just waiting to jump into your family's eating pattern!

You're counting calories so snacks are not for you? Take heart — processors have already met the challenge, low calorie snacks are just around the corner.

THE BLBS LAMP FOR YOUR HOME SEEING CENTER

Every home needs several good seeing centers. A seeing center is a place which is well lighted and comfortable for close work. Persons of all ages find close work easier when the work area is well lighted. Good desk lighting is especially important to encourage good study habits by young people. Has your home enough good seeing centers so that at night every family member has good light for the close work he likes to do?

Look for the BLBS hangtag shown below when you buy a lamp for study, reading, sewing, writing, hobbies, or other close work.

The BLBS tag means that the lamp meets performance standards for the Better Light Better Sight Bureau and the Illuminating Engineering Society. Desk, table and floor lamps may carry this tag.

The BLBS lamp puts glare-free light where it is needed and in proper amounts. It is built to provide at least 70 foot candles over the prescribed work area. This requires use of a 200 watt (A-23) light bulb. This is the amount of light recommended for close work by the Illuminating Engineering Society. Also, it is about twice the amount you can expect from the usual reading lamp.

To help you identify the kind of light bulb to buy, manufacturers are putting the 200 A-23 bulb in a special package which labels it for use in the BLBS Tag Lamp.

Folder 160 the BLBS lamp for your Home Seeing Center is available at the University Extension Center.

FOOD-BUYING TIPS

Do it yourself - There is no substitute for your own experience in choosing the right quality of fresh fruit for different uses. Tips in this booklet, however, can serve as a useful guide to achieving satisfaction and economy in your shopping.

Don't buy just because of low price - It seldom pays to buy perishable fruits merely because the price is low. Unless the lower price is a result of overabundance of the fruit at the time, the so-called bargain may be undesirable.

Buy only what you need - Modern home refrigeration makes it possible to keep an adequate supply of most perishable fruits on hand, but never buy more than you can properly refrigerate and use without waste - even if the product is cheaper in quantity.

Keep a lookout for deterioration - Even with the most modern handling methods, some products decline rapidly in quality while on display. Frequently such off-quality fruit can be bought at a reduced price, but the waste in preparation may offset the price reduction.

Don't buy on size alone - Large sized fruits are not necessarily the best quality, nor are they always economical. They may appear to be bargains, but may be entirely unsuited to the purpose you have in mind.

Appearance isn't everything - Select your fruit for best eating quality rather than outer appearance. If you want to shop economically, Appearance and quality are closely associated in many respects, but fine appearance does not always denote fine quality. Often a fruit with a very attractive

Hotels Booked Solidly

NEW YORK (AP) — Hotels in Aruba are booked solid through the weekend. So are the 830-room Ilikai on the beach at Waikiki and little Penny Point in Long Island's Hamptons, which has room for 60 people.

Impetus for the crowds at "in" resorts during the four-day Thanksgiving Day weekend is the newest rage: Minivacations.

United Air Lines has added 70 extra sections to its holiday schedule, and expects to carry 90,000 persons Wednesday—a one-day record.

"Thanksgiving is second only to Christmas as a travel time," said a spokesman for United. "It makes a four-day holiday."

"The long-weekend business has zoomed since jet service started," said a spokesman for Aruba, in the Netherlands Antilles. "Labor Day, Memorial Day, the Fourth, Jewish holidays—they are all heavily booked now. And the proposal to observe holidays on Mondays would be a tremendous boon."

The National Industrial Conference Board, which periodically studies business practices, reports there has been a shift in the last 10 years to giving employees eight paid holidays, including Good Friday and George Washington's Birthday.

It notes a trend to offering paid holidays for Christmas Eve, Thanksgiving Friday and "floating holidays," to be taken when the employee wants to take a long weekend.

"Traditional holidays are now taken for granted; it is only when management grants other days off, such as floating holidays—particularly those that fall on Friday or Monday—that a company obtains any significant employee relations benefit," the board said.

"There's a definite swing to minivacations," said Robert A. Peattie, Jr., Travel Research president.

appearance may be relatively poor eating quality because of a varietal characteristic or because of some internal condition such as over-maturity. On the other hand, a fruit with poor appearance due to poor color or superficial blemishes may have excellent eating quality.

Buy in Season — Quality is usually higher, and prices more reasonable, when you buy fruit in season. Out-of-season produce is generally more expensive.

Shop for plentiful - Through newspapers, radio and television, the U.S. department of Agriculture tells you each month which fruits are in greatest supply and worthy of your special attention. Such plentiful foods are usually good choices and reasonably priced.

Don't pinch - Rough handling of fruits while you are selecting them causes spoilage and waste. Such loss to the grocer usually is passed on to the consumer, so your costs go up when fruit is carelessly handled. When you must handle a fruit to judge its quality, use thoughtful care to prevent injury.

THE NEWS in Brief

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The Army plans to cancel its ban against sending mail to "lonely servicemen" in Vietnam.

Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., said Tuesday that the post office had decided that mail sent to "a lonely serviceman" care of Pfc. William Rice in Vietnam could not be considered as anonymously addressed. The Army had received thousands of letters addressed that way after a letter from Rice asking for mail had appeared in a newspaper column.

Rice had volunteered to distribute the letters to servicemen who otherwise would have a cheerless Christmas.

The Defense Department had banned mail addressed to unspecified persons after a serviceman in Vietnam received a can of dog food and a note calling him an animal.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Placing legal fig leaves on "variegated presentations of the human figure" is not the judiciary's business, the state Supreme Court declared Tuesday.

The court, ruling that the International Nudist Sun was not an obscene publication, said it followed the U.S. Supreme Court's finding that the nude human form in a nonsexual context is not obscene.

The state court thereby affirmed an original judgment by the Los Angeles Municipal Court which had been reversed by the state's District Court of Appeal.

CAIRO (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser issued a decree Tuesday forming a three-man tribunal to deal with crimes threatening state security.

The tribunal would, in the main, try army officers and civilians involved in acts harmful to the security of Egypt during the Arab-Israeli war and its aftermath, sources said.

A number of officers and civilians are awaiting trial on charges of conspiring to seize power last August. Others are charged with negligence and disloyalty which led to the June military debacle.

HEFLIN, Ala. (AP) — State and federal agents raided a barn looking for a moonshine still and found a corker of a cooker.

"This is the largest cooker any of us has ever seen," said John Corbin Jr., a federal revenue agent. He said the cooker, used in converting mash to whisky, was a 20-foot long, six-foot high steel vat.

The raid Tuesday produced five arrests and 20,360 gallons of fermenting mash. The still was said to be the largest ever discovered in Alabama.

Corbin said the 19,200-gallon still was capable of producing 725 gallons of illicit whisky daily.

Soldier's Sentences Reduced

AN KHE, Vietnam (AP)—The sentences of three soldiers convicted of raping a Vietnamese woman have been reduced by Maj. Gen. John J. Tolson, commander of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division, the Army said today.

The sentence of Pfc. David R. Holiman, 22, of Tunas, Mo., was reduced from 15 to 10 years; that of Spec. 4 Murlin F. Danford, 20, of Garden City, Kan., from 15 to seven years; and that of Pfc. Lynn D. Ward, 19, of Manteca, Calif., from 20 to 15 years.

The sentences imposed on two other soldiers in the same incident were approved. They are Sgt. Billy D. Smith, 22, Charleston, W. Va., 25 years, and Spec. 4 Thomas J. Ward, 20, Mechanicsburg, Pa., 20 years.

The five servicemen now will be returned to the U.S. for imprisonment at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan. Each was given a dishonorable discharge.

An Army general court martial board also found the men guilty of robbing the woman's home and of misbehavior before

For LA Dodgers

Alston Ready For His 15th Year as a Coach

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Walter Alston, the dean of managers in major league baseball, is set to pilot the Los Angeles Dodgers for the 15th consecutive year—counting the old Brooklyn Dodgers, of course.

Alston flew out from his hometown, Darrtown, Ohio, for the formal signing Wednesday and to confer with President Walter O'Malley, Vice President E. J. (Buzze) Bavasi and other brass regarding the baseball meetings next week in Mexico City.

The Dodgers did not divulge salary figures but the 55-year-old Alston reportedly will receive $55,000 for 1968, the same he is supposed to have made in 1967.

Alston, it appears, was not penalized for the club's disappointing headlong collapse from first in 1965 to eighth in 1966.

Alston late last season was wooed by at least two other clubs to manage at more handsome figures than he gets from the Dodgers. Why did he decide to stay with Los Angeles?

"The Dodgers have always treated me well over the years," he said. "Besides, we've had some pretty good athletes over the years. I'm satisfied."

What is needed for 1968? "Two things. Hitting and defense," he replied. He pinpointed on defense the infield and particularly shortstop. Several tried but none really succeeded at shortstop last season.

He said the defense cost the club more runs than it should have. He'll take a long look at all the talent in spring training.

Alston also said that if he can come up with another pitcher, he might go with a five-man pitching rotation instead of the usual four.

He feels, he explained, that a veteran such as Don Drysdale, or a busy young man such as Don Sutton, might benefit from an extra day's rest.

Another interleague trade highlighted other baseball news as Cincinnati dealt outfielder Floyd Robinson and right-handed reliever Darrell Osteen to the Oakland Athletics for right-hander Ron Tompkins.

Robinson, 31, acquired by the Reds from the Chicago White Sox last year, was hampered by injuries in 1967 and hit only .238 as a reserve. Osteen, 24, finished last season with Buffalo and had a 10-4 record.

Tompkins, 23, won 10 and lost 9 at Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League.

The Detroit Tigers completed their deal for Eddie Mathews last August by sending right-handed relief hurler Fred Gladding to the Houston Astros. The Astros chose Gladding from a list of six players named by the Tigers at the times of the trade.

Gladding won six games and saved 10 for Detroit.

The New York Mets assigned outfielder Larry Stahl, 26, to Jacksonville, Fla., of the International League and Philadelphia sold right-hander Bill Champion, 20, to their San Diego farm club of the PCL. Stahl hit .237 in 69 games and Champion had a 6-9 record at Portsmouth, Va., of the Carolina League.

The California Angels signed Gaetan Groleau, 20, leading pitcher in the Montreal Junior League the last four years, for a reported $6,000 bonus.

Washington extended General Manager George Selkirk's contract through 1970, the third extension in his five years with the Senators.

Jackson Waits For Buzzer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Tony Jackson waited until the final buzzer to give New Jersey a victory in the American Basketball Association, but Jim Burns chose to wait until the sound had died away to bring in Dallas.

Jackson dropped a 28-foot three-point goal as time ran out, bringing the Americans a 109-106 victory over the New Orleans Buccaneers Wednesday night in Teaneck, N.J.

Burns also tried a jump shot at the buzzer, but he was fouled by Oliver Darden and sank two free throws after time was gone for a 112-111 triumph over Indiana at Indianapolis.

In the only other ABA contest, Houston's second team sparked the Mavericks to a 106-100 decision over Denver in Houston.

The Amers had called time out with 14 seconds left after Doug Moe tied the game for New Orleans with a basket for the last of his 36 points.

The idea was to set up Jackson for a drive, but close guarding by Moe wasted 13½ of those seconds before Jackson could manage a jump shot for the clincher.

Jackson finished with 24 points.

Burns, a rookie guard from Northwestern, made his two free tosses after missing four of his first five tries for the night. They gave the Chaparrals their only lead of the night over the Eastern Division-leading Pacers, who led 61-52 at the half. The points also ended a three-game losing streak.

Cincy Powell led Dallas with 27 points. Roger Brown had 26 for Indiana.

Houston Coach Slater Martin, meditating over a nine-point deficit late in the third quarter, put in his second team the rest of the game and it richly rewarded him. Willie Somerset led the final surge with 14 points in the last quarter and Guy Manning added 10.

Blood Donors In Cuba

HAVANA (AP)—The two-million member Committees for the Defense of the Revolution have set a goal of 50,000 blood donations for 1968. The neighborhood watch-dog groups say they got 25,708 donations this year.

KELSO, the now retired five-time Horse of the Year, spends his remaining days traveling around the beautiful Maryland horse country with his owner, Mrs. Richard C. Du Pont, accompanied by his canine buddies.

Junior Kickers To Play

Sedalia Junior Kickers players are playing this weekend in St. Louis. The 18 players leave Friday and that night play their first game. On this weekend venture the team will meet three teams of the St. Louis Khoury League Association.

Friday night at Berra Park they will battle a two time former National Junior Division Champion in the persons of the Kutis Nationals, who are coached by Jim Henson former St. Louis Amateur star. Though the personnel has changed since National Championship honors were won in 1962 and 1963, the St. Louis team is in a first place battle with Sedalia Cup runners-up Tower Heating and Sunday's opponents Carondelet Sunday Morning Club.

Saturday the SJ's will take on the Bellville Jaycee Juniors, who were Consolation winner in local cup competition. This is a team who has a tough defense and uses it to cause offense, their goalie, except for one outing has allowed but three goals. Their record shows only one defeat, that here in Sedalia.

CSMAC will match kicks Sunday at Forest Park, they hold a 5-2 victory over Sedalia in a game played 3 weeks ago at Jefferson City.

The team will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Claude Lambirth and team coach Jim Koerner, and will stay at Corral Courts in St. Louis County.

Koerner stated: "We've had a lay-off of 10 days and have been working hard on our defense as we've allowed our opponent's some cheap goals. If we are to win against these teams we're going to have to do it with low scoring games, as due to basketball starting we'll be without two of the team's top forwards, Dennis Johnson, our leading goal getter, and Ron Huhman, a determined passer and team leader in hustle. This is a team that has learned how to win and plans on coming back with victories."

The Sedalia Lions Club is helping to defer the accommodation costs for the teams stay in St. Louis.

20,665 Deer Fall In Five Days

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The deer kill for the first five days of Missouri's eight-day hunting season totaled 20,665 Wednesday, down 3,586 from the first five days last year.

Dunbar "Dixie" Robb, game biologist of the state Conservation Department, blamed the letdown on the weather. It was too good, almost perfect.

Because of the mild temperatures, Robb said, the deer bedded down early after daylight and the hunters got sleepy, and went back to camp for a mid-day beer and nap.

The hunters will get another chance at the deer when the season reopens Dec. 1 through Dec. 3 to complete the eight-day season.

Four hunters died in accidental shootings during the five days.

Otis Thornborn, field agent for the Missouri Conservation Commission, reported no arrests were made and that the season will open again, Dec. 1 to 3rd, for bucks only.

Titles on Line

St. Louis And Dallas to Meet

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Dallas and St. Louis, with only three days to build an appetite, still should be plenty hungry for their Turkey Day meeting tonight with two National Football League divisional titles on the table.

The Cowboys and Cardinals, coming off unsatisfying performances last Sunday, dig in against each other in the Cotton Bowl, the Cowboys sniffing the Capitol Division crown, the Cardinals with an eye on the Century championship.

The game was one of four on the television menu with game time set for 6 p.m. EST on CBS.

Los Angeles met Detroit earlier in the first half of an NFL television doubleheader while Oakland played at Kansas City and Denver at San Diego in an American League twinbill on NBC.

The Cowboys, 7-3, lead the Capitol Division by two games despite a 27-20 upset loss to Washington last Sunday. The situation for the Cardinals, 5-4-1, is more pressing after a dreary 30-3 defeat at Chicago sent them one-half game behind Cleveland in the Century Division.

The teams have only three days to prepare their table manners, but at least they'll be trying to carve up each other with everyone healthy.

They will be looking for a return to form by quarterbacks Don Meredith of Dallas and Jim Hart of the Cardinals. Meredith got the Cowboys only one score against Washington before Craig Morton relieved and pitched for two touchdowns.

Hart, a sensation earlier in the season, got only a tie against Pittsburgh two weeks ago and had five passes intercepted by the Bears last Sunday.

Meredith and Morton will be throwing to Lance Rentzel and Bob Hayes with Don Perkins and Dan Reeves running and catching. Hart throws to Bobby Joe Conrad, Jackie Smith and Billy Gambrell with Johnny Roland, the second best rusher in the NFL, running.

But the offenses will be going against two string defenses. "Defense should decide the game," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "Those guys (the Cardinals) can make an offense look awfully bad. And we're tough on defense, too."

Dallas is two games ahead of Philadelphia, which plays at New York Sunday against the Giants, only a game behind Cleveland. The Browns host Washington, at 4-4-2.

In other Sunday games, Baltimore tries to protect its Coastal Division lead and its unbeaten record at San Francisco while Green Bay, 7-2-1, meets the Bears, 5-5, its closest competition in the Central Division.

Joe Caldwell's two clutch baskets in the last 90 seconds gave St. Louis its win over Philadelphia and ended a three-game losing streak for the Western Division leaders.

Caldwell, who scored 28 points over-all, stole the ball and dunked it to put the Hawks ahead for good with about 1½ minutes left. He sewed it up for the Hawks with another two-point in the last minute.

The defeat dropped the 76ers two games back of first-place Boston in the Eastern Division. Hal Greer topped the 76ers with 34 points. Big Will Chamberlain got only 12 on four field goals and four of 11 free throws.

Atlanta travels to New Orleans and Minnesota invades Pittsburgh in other contests.

In the AFL Sunday, Houston can pull within a game of the Eastern Division lead with a victory over visiting Boston while Buffalo plays at Miami. The New York Jets, who lead the East, have a bye.

Russell Benches Himself

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Boston Celtics' Coach Bill Russell had a problem. He solved it by benching Boston Celtics' player Bill Russell.

Toward the end of the first half of the Celtics' 124-110 victory over San Diego Wednesday night, the score was tied 48-48 and Russell put Wayne Embry in for himself.

Big Wayne quickly sank a pair of free throws, added a three-point play and scored another basket, leading the Celtics to a 61-52 halftime lead.

Embry came in for Russell again early in the second half and hit three more fast baskets and the Celtics led by as much as 17 points. The Rockets couldn't get back after that.

In other NBA action, Cincinnati nipped New York 123-122, Chicago beat Baltimore 105-100, and St. Louis edged Philadelphia 115-113.

In the American Basketball Association, Houston beat Denver 106-100, Dallas topped Indiana 112-111 and New Jersey shaded New Orleans 109-106.

Jerry Lucas threw in two free throws with two seconds left in the Royals' victory over the Knickerbockers. Oscar Robertson led Cincinnati with 40 points and Lucas added 31. Cazzie Russell topped the Knicks with 29.

Jerry Sloan's 35 points, plus his team's last five of the game, was the big factor in the Bulls' triumph. The Bulls, trailing by 13 points in the third quarter, pulled to within two in the final period, but Sloan clinched the victory with a late basket.

Joe Caldwell's two clutch baskets in the last 90 seconds gave St. Louis its win over Philadelphia and ended a three-game losing streak for the Western Division leaders.

Caldwell, who scored 28 points over-all, stole the ball and dunked it to put the Hawks ahead for good with about 1½ minutes left. He sewed it up for the Hawks with another two-point in the last minute.

Football Specials Fade Out

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Thanksgiving used to be the start of a three-day period that made Philadelphia the football capital of the United States. No more.

In years past the Cornell-Penn game used to pack 60,000 or more into Franklin Field for the once-famed Turkey Day clash. On the following Saturday the annual Army-Navy clash at the then Municipal Stadium on South Broad Street always drew a capacity 102,000.

The two games provided the background for a colorful weekend of social affairs for celebrities from all walks of life and leading football coaches from throughout the country.

That is all changed now. Cornell plays at Penn this Saturday and the annual meeting between the Ivy League rivals no longer attracts 60,000.

The Army-Navy clash isn't until a week from Saturday, Dec. 2. The color service clash still packs them in.

Nowadays the big college Turkey Day games are in the Southwest and Midwest.

Texas A&M entertains Texas at the College Station, Tex., while Oklahoma and Nebraska tangle at Lincoln, Neb., in the leading games today.

Bowl bids hinge on each game. If Texas A&M beats Texas the Aggies will win their first Southwest Conference title in 11 years and their first Cotton Bowl assignment in 26.

A Texas A&M victory also would put the Miami, Fla., Hurricanes in the Bluebonnet Bowl against Colorado.

"If the Aggies win, Miami is our team," Lou Hassell, chairman of the Bluebonnet selection committee, said Wednesday.

A victory for Nebraska over Oklahoma probably would put the Cornhuskers into the Liberty Bowl against Georgia.

This information came from A. F. Dudley, president of the Liberty Bowl, who called a Nebraska-Georgia match "the most logical one." Oklahoma already is in the Orange Bowl.

In other games today Virginia Military and Virginia Tech clash at Roanoke while Villanova is at Toledo. On Friday night Notre Dame is at Miami, Fla. The other major teams don't play until Saturday.

Five Applications Cleared by Board

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Five applicants for the American League baseball franchise in Kansas City have been cleared by a special board of review of the Jackson County Sports Authority.

The major league baseball franchise was left vacant when owner Charles O. Finley transferred the Athletics to Oakland, Calif., following last season.

All five applicants probably will be interviewed next week by an American League committee in Mexico City, where baseball officials will be attending an international baseball meeting.

Area Basketball

Smithton took both the A and B games from Cole Camp at Smithton Tuesday night.

In the A game Smithton walked away with 72 points to Cole Camp's 50.

Unique Substitutes For Picture Frames

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Anne who has several pictures of dogs and cats that she wants to hang but found it too expensive to buy so many frames. I suggest using just one large frame, which might be secured at a thrift sale, second-hand shop or junk store. Cut a piece of mat board to fit in the frame and arrange all the pictures on it in a suitable pattern. After the proper arrangement is determined, secure them on with rubber cement. Frame this mat as you would any picture.

If the pictures could be framed without glass, the mat board might be used without a frame around it. If glass is wanted for protection, cut it the size of the frame. Or use tape to hold the board to the glass and give the effect of a frame.—MILDRED.

DEAR POLLY—and ANNE—While staying at a plush wall-to-wall carpeted motel, I was intrigued by their unique pictures. They had been cut from slick magazines, pasted on 16-inch ceiling tiles and finished with clear varnish. The manager said he was forced to do this as tourists walked off with his good pictures. Of course, any size tile could be used and the sides which extend should be cut off.—ETHEL.

DEAR POLLY—Oval paper platters and plates lend themselves to a project such as Anne has in mind. Paint the borders black, gold or whatever you like. Shells or fancy macaroni could be glued on to the plate border before painting. Fit the picture into the center of the plate or platter and glue with rubber cement. Glue a picture hanger on the back. I did eight for about 50 cents and my Cub Scout boys did about 30 of them.—JANET.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know how to remove stains on a heavy linen dress caused by vegetable oil splashing on the part not covered by my apron while frying chicken. The spots still remain, even after laundering several times in hot water.—TINA.

Davis Not Senatorial Candidate

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Wealthy St. Joseph business man W. True Davis Jr., rumored to be considering running for the U. S. Senate seat now held by fellow Democrat Sen. Edward V.

Long, denied the report Tuesday night.

Davis, who is assistant secretary of the Treasury, sprang his surprise denial in a question and answer session following an address to a small Democratic group at Gladstone, a Kansas City suburb.

Saying he was not a candidate for the Senate, Davis added, "that's not saying that someday I might not be."

The rumor that Davis would resign as assistant secretary and toss his hat in the ring for the Senate against Long, a close political friend, circulated in Washington as recently as a week ago.

Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton of St. Louis and Dorsey Bass, Columbia business man and farmer, already are in the race for the Democratic nomination in opposition to Long who is seeking re-election.

Davis has served as campaign treasurer in the past for both Long and Sen. Stuart Symington, and handled campaign finances for Long's predecessor, the late Thomas C. Hennings Jr. Davis also is one of the Democratic party's principal contributors in Missouri.

Long has maintained that he doubted Davis would file against him.

In his address, Davis listed Democratic accomplishments under the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. The Republicans do not have anything worthwhile to offer," he said. "It has been their policy never to improve anything."

COLLEGE BOUND

U.S. Junior college enrollment has increased by more than 100,000 each year during the education "explosion" of recent years. Prediction now is that total two-year enrollment will top two million by 1970.

BURGEONING CAMPUSES

The number of higher education institutions in the United States has been increasing as steadily as total enrollment. Junior colleges account for the bulk of recent growth. During the peak period of postwar growth, 50 new two-year schools a year have been opening.

Sheriffs May Keep Civil Fees

Attorney General, Norman H. Anderson, ruled today that sheriffs of third and fourth class counties may under Senate Bill 237 retain all non-accountable civil fees received by them as of October 13, 1967, even though the amounts exceed the annual limits set by that bill. Anderson issued Opinion No. 415 in response to inquiry of State Auditor Haskell Holman. The Attorney General said that sheriffs who have received fees up to or in excess of the limits set by Senate Bill 237 as of October 13, 1967, are not entitled to retain any civil fees received between October 13, 1967, and January 1, 1968.

"Sheriffs who have not received civil fees up to the limits set by Senate Bill 237 as of October 13, 1967, may retain all civil fees received after that date and up to January 1, 1968, until the limits of Senate Bill 237 are reached," Anderson added. The Attorney General noted that sheriffs' expenses under Section 548.241 are not gained officially as sheriff and therefore are not subject to the provisions of Senate Bill 237.

The Attorney General explained that he was speaking

IN THE NEWS

BOSTON (AP) — An appeal for commutation of a life prison sentence by one of six men convicted of the $1.2 million Brink's Inc. robbery in 1950 has been denied by the State Parole Board.

The board's rejection Monday of the petition by Michael V. Geagan, 59, was by unanimous vote of its five members.

Geagan is serving life for an armed robbery conviction, and 8-10 years for breaking and entering. He and several other men convicted of the Brink's holdup also have been unsuccessful in previous parole appeals.

of the maximum amounts of $12,500 and $10,000 which sheriffs of third and fourth class counties respectively are allowed to retain under the provisions of Senate Bill 237, applicable for the year 1967. He said that before October 13, 1967, there had been no limit on the amount of civil fees that could be retained by sheriffs of these counties.

Here are some practical Christmas gifts for men who already own a watch.

ACCUTRON ASTRONAUT "M" Water-proof, sweep second hand, rotating 24 hour bezel, 24 hour indicator, black luminous dial and hands. All stainless steel. $175.00

ACCUTRON CALENDAR "2" 14K gold, water-proof, sweep second hand, calendar window, silver or gold dial, luminous dots and hands. Rust alligator strap. $225.00

The gifts above look like watches, but that's where the resemblance ends.

They are Accutron® timepieces. Watches have a balance wheel, a hairspring and a mainspring. And these mechanical watch parts may have trouble keeping the right time.

The Accutron movement does not depend on watchworks. Instead, an electronic-powered tuning fork keeps time through vibrations. And it keeps the right time. In fact, we guarantee monthly accuracy within 60 seconds. (And we know Accutron owners who say their timepiece is accurate to within 60 seconds a year.)

It doesn't surprise us. But it will surprise the men on your Christmas list. Particularly, if they already own a watch.

The old-fashioned balance wheel principle is used in all watches, not the Accutron movement. The Accutron tuning fork makes possible the first guarantee of accuracy ever given.

Tells Housewives How to Strip (Literally)

By AILEEN SNODDY

NEW YORK. — (NEA) — Two men under 30 seem to have put their fingers on the hypertension pulse of the U.S. reading public.

In paperback book publishing for two years, Richard Gallen and Peter Workman capitalize on the instant reader—the one who doesn't or won't take the time for serious literature. Thus far they are surviving splendidly even though their one-floor offices could use some plastering and painting.

Theirs is a philosophy that nothing is as dead as yesterday's news. So these Yale graduates continue to build their titles list suited to an era of now-ism.

According to Workman, the firm's goal is to catch fads and news while they are still hot. "We are not financially big enough to buy big books. Our basic scheme is to pick up something that is overlooked or that no one else is doing. With TV, hobbies and easy recreation, the great mass of our population does not have the time or interest to read seller at more than one million copies.

Although Workman wanted to be a writer, too, and started as a copy boy with The New York Daily News and was a "slush reader" for McCall's, he admits he functions best as an editor and publisher. The two left Dell Publishing to form their company.

As a publisher, Workman likes to explore such publishing problems in the United States as publishers' lack of rapport with the youth market, satire and pornography.

"Too many publishers who must issue 22 to 26 books a month to survive," he says, "don't gamble and stay away from fads and certain topics." The pop music publishers have been extremely successful, he points out but "no one is publishing for the young in paperbacks (except comics). I mean the high school and college reader. We hope to fill the gap."

The NOW People

"This is a time of freedom and rebellion. Generalizations and rules of what we say in the home and in print are wearing off. Many so-called pornographic books, he adds, "may be dirty and written to titillate the housewife but I don't think they are pornographic in the classic sense."

When it comes to satire such as their The Great Society Comic Book and Animal Ranch that pricked LBJ and Washington dignitaries, he feels they were "successes by fluke. Generally you can't do satire successfully in the United States because it is too intellectual. Our books caught on because of visual content and not because the readers savored the word content which was good."

Irreverence of the Establishment, he feels, is healthy and that "the public is the final arbiter of what will undermine the structure of the country."

NEVER PRAISE FOR FOOD MINISTER

PATNA, India (AP)—Bihar State Food Minister K. D. Singh says housewives curse him all day long.

Singh says that in his unenviable position a housewife starts the day cursing him for the coal shortage when she tries to light the morning fire; she complains during the day because of the shortage of sugar for tea; and she is not in an "endearing mood" when she thinks of the high price or kerosene for lanterns at night.

long, wordy books, no matter how good."

Such an attitude toward mass-market book publishing led Parallax Publishing Co. to do, for example, The Hula-balo Discotheque Dance Book, to ride the dance craze; Graffiti, to capitalize on the current interest in wall writing; and Blintzkrieg '67, in the wake of the Israeli-Arab crisis.

The firm is set up to publish archly illustrated paperbacks quickly. For example, "Candy Mossler — Her Life and Trial" was on sale four days after her acquittal.

The company name, according to them, refers to "the ability to see one object or subject from different viewpoints."

This, they feel, allows them to publish something like "The Wonderful Art of Strip-tease," a how-to book for the housewife. Workman says the idea came from stripper Ann Corio who claims most women are "vicarious strippers."

Gallen, who also is general counsel for Grove Press, knows the value of putting an idea to work. Using his legal training, he wrote "Wives' Legal Rights," a runaway

Since Rockwell's Death

Fuehrer-less Nazis Lack Old Fury

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

ARLINGTON, Va. — (NEA) —The phone number for American Nazi party headquarters is 534-3476. There is one ring. The answering voice is sluggish and suspicious:

"Who's calling?"

"I'm a newspaper reporter."

"What do you want?"

"An interview."

"Sorry. No interviews."

"Why not?"

"We . . . uh, we're just not set up for interviews right now."

The dialogue continues into a mild argument. The reporter insists on speaking to somebody in charge. The Nazi becomes irritated, takes a deep breath, blurts that "there ain't nobody in charge" and slams his phone on the hook.

Altogether the brief conversation is fruitless, with one exception. It serves to justify growing convictions that there really is "nobody in charge" at Nazi headquarters these days and that indications are the whole muddled storm-trooper corps may well be standing on its last jack-boots.

Observers believe that the bullets which murdered ANP "fuhrer" George Lincoln Rockwell late in the summer, may also have fatally wounded further meaningful existence for his watch fob organization.

MATT KOEHL, a loyal follower of the late George Lincoln Rockwell, now heads the American Nazi party. At best, he lacks Rockwell's personal magnetism.

This speculation is widespread among Nazi watchers. The FBI, local police authorities and Anti-Defamation League officers are on record as predicting the end "for all practical purposes" of the Hitleresque movement in the United States.

An Arlington police detective, Sgt. Walter Kadel, speaks for many when he says: "The party was never very big, you know—maybe a hundred or so members. Now it's even less. Therefore we consider it just a routine local nuisance."

An FBI spokesman agrees and adds: "We expect them to continue stirring up trouble from time to time. But it's fairly evident they are fading. We think they have a bleak future."

Even some Nazi sympathizers are doubtful the ANP will ever survive present deterioration. A check of a half-dozen former members indicates their principal reason for resigning was, as one says, "to get the hell off a sinking ship."

The reasons for the present state of affairs are well-documented. There is, for one thing, no money in the vault. Public contributions are nickels and dimes. And many of Rockwell's sugar wells dried up with his demise.

There is, for another thing, a restless, unpredictableness among the undereducated party faithfuls. They are a motley crew: some sadistic, some homosexual, some on drugs. Empires aren't built on added brains.

But the chief woe at party headquarters these days is leadership. There is very little of it and what there is is vaporous. Rockwell, for all his sickness, had personal magnetism. There seems no one around to take his place.

The current heir apparent is somebody called "Major" Matt Koehl, a 32-year-old hate preacher who joined the party in 1960 and won his promotions for berating Negroes in Milwaukee and intimidating Jews in Chicago.

At best, Koehl is unimpressive. His most noteworthy personal achievement is a high school diploma. He is not married, owns no record of military experience and has what the FBI files call "a history of deranged thinking."

Koehl is disliked by many party members, past and present. Some claim he is a self-seeking opportunist. Others claim he's a government-placed spy. Most, however, believe he hasn't the mentality to be either.

One ex-Nazi, Karl Allen of Alexandria, says that Koehl's nickname is "the Robot," that he's a "good follower, but no leader," and that "the only reason he leads the party now is because everyone else left is even dumber than him."

To be sure, after Koehl the Nazi hierarchy is completely hopeless, a squad of faceless goons whose paramount reason for belonging to the organization is to establish the sense of identity that escapes them in normal society.

"The party is just falling apart," gripes one disillusioned ex-member. "After Rockwell died we didn't do nothing. All we did around headquarters is raise the flag every day. God, I got so sick of raising that stupid old flag."

SNOW PILLOW is a new technique developed by the Agriculture Department for measuring winter snows and runoff water they are likely to yield for crop irrigation. Instruments inside pillows, such as this one at Stevens Pass, Wash., record snow cover pressure and transmit the information to a central office. Reports from several strategically placed pillows are compiled for an estimate of water from melting snow the following spring.

Cannot Get Title For Lines

Attorney General Norman H. Anderson has ruled that the City of Columbia cannot lawfully acquire title to property in Cooper County for the purpose of building electric power lines. Anderson issued Opinion No. 299 in response to inquiry of State Senator A. Baise Vanlandingham (Dem.), Columbia.

The Attorney General said that the City of Columbia wanted to purchase electric power from the Union Electric Company at its Overton, Missouri, substation in Cooper County about four miles west of Boone County in which the City of Columbia is situated. Anderson said that the City of Columbia had wanted to acquire two easements and planned to construct, operate and maintain a transmission line from Columbia to the substation in Cooper County.

The Attorney General explained that the City of Columbia is a constitutional charter city under the authority of Article VI, Section 19, of the Missouri Constitution. He said that Section 82.240, RSMo 1959, permits constitutional charter cities to provide in their charters for land acquisition. "However," Anderson said, "this section limits the power of a constitutional charter city to provide in its charter for acquisition of land in another county. Accordingly, it is our opinion that the City of Columbia cannot acquire by purchase or condemnation, title to property in Cooper County for the purpose of erecting and maintaining electrical power transmission lines."

Sorosis Program Outlined

An unusual and entertaining program was given by Mrs. Myrill Rodney Remley, Liberty, at Heard Memorial Club House Monday afternoon at Sorosis as she presented a one woman show on the subject: "Women."

For some of her characterizations, Mrs. Remley used costumes, but on the first one Eve, she brought along a sprig of leaves which she displayed but said she didn't think she had time to change to the costume.

Everything started with Eve, Mrs. Remley commented, when Eve ate that famous apple, she just wrecked everything. "But thou didst give temptation" Adam told her, and the speaker pointed out, this is still going on.

Women followed, there were queens and mistresses, people heard a lot about. Then there were the silent women, Mrs. Remley told the group. These women were in Rome and the men were busy fighting or tearing down. The women were in real estate, they ran the farms, they bought and sold slaves, cured illness, and bemoaned the graft and corruption which was ruining the government. They talked, Mrs. Remley said, but not loudly, of the luxury and the fine homes with baths. They knew where the arrows pointed. There was a generation that did not have enough to say. She quoted a man in Washington, D. C. who recently said that women have talked too much, and she left the thought that the women of today again see the pointing of the arrows. Women have been active for a long time, she said, but haven't kept the record very good.

Donning a hat with a small plume, a beaded black cape and pair of black kid gloves, Mrs. Remley then gave a humorous report of a delegate to the first PTA organization in Washington, D. C., which was called the Mothers Congress in 1898.

She was astonished that a woman gave the invocation, even though there were no men there, but one of the women asked her if she didn't suppose God would listen to a woman's prayer. That was the morning meeting and then she thought it was odd that they had no opening prayer at the afternoon meeting, which which another woman responded, "God's got no short memory that I've ever heard of."

The delegate brought back

In the News

PEACE CANDIDATES may be on both Democratic and Republican ballots in next year's presidential primaries. Perennial contender Harold Stassen has announced he'll make another try at the GOP nomination on the peace issue. Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota indicates he may take the same route in Democratic contests.

many ideas of things to come, such as the unheard of thing as canned soup. There was the knitted cuffs at the wrists and ankles of long underwear, too, which would do away of having to fold them over to go under stockings. She had purchased seven beautiful plates with slots in them through which velvet ribbon could be run, when she got enough money to buy the velvet ribbon.

In Washington, too, she had seen a man who was getting men ready for trouble in Cuba. They were marching and training. The man, the delegate said, was Teddy Roosevelt, and some people thought he would someday be president, but of course, she remarked, he never would. And then she said, when a speech, such as hers was finished, it wasn't the thing to applaud, but to wave a handkerchief. This was called, she explained, the Chataqua salute.

Mrs. Remley then turned from the humorous to the serious vein, Christmas. Putting a scarf over her head she envisioned the young Mary and her longing for knowledge. There were probably intellectuals entertained in her home and she listened as they talked. She, no doubt, loved the stories of the prophets and the services in the temple, but because she was a woman she was never given the opportunity to sit in on the talks at the temple. Long before the appearance of the Angel Gabriel she must have been prepared for this great thing for which she was chosen.

Closing Mrs. Remley told of the three wise men who made the long journey following the brilliant star that seemed loose and yet held, which led to the place where there was a beautiful child. Telling of this later, since they did not want to return to tell Herod, one went to the foothills and to the home of a merchant, he said that he knelt because he could not stand before the infant, and as he knelt, he said, he felt freedom, knowledge and love.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Robert Edmondson, history and literature chairman. Mrs. Edmondson also introduced Mrs. Ray B. Horton, Liberty, who accompanied the speaker to Sedalia.

Mrs. Kenneth U. Love, president, presided over the business meeting.

The next meeting will be Dec. 4, and Mrs. John Sneed, Jr., chairman of art and drama, announced the speaker will be Chester Danett, St. Louis, who will talk on "The Image of Photography."

CITY OF LIGHT could be a new name for Moscow, not previously noted for its nighttime glitter. But the Soviet capital currently is ablaze during celebrations of the October Revolution's 50th anniversary. The towers of the Kremlin, looking like a fairyland, are at right. Spotlit in the night sky over the city is a huge balloon bearing Lenin's portrait.

The Northside Citizens Association and Legion of the Moose are joining forces to help Santa bring toys to underprivileged boys and girls in Pettis County, according to Homer Marshall, president of the Northside Citizens Association.

Members of the N.C.A. have been busy decorating boxes and barrels in gay red and white paper the past week. These containers have been placed in stores throughout Sedalia. Citizens of Pettis County and surrounding area are asked to help Santa by buying an extra toy or bag of candy when they are shopping and leave it in one of the containers. Santa's helpers from the N.C.A. will collect the gifts and turn them over to the Legion of the Moose.

Don Williams, president, and his committee will add them to the toys which they have collected throughout the year. On Christmas morning they will be distributed to the less fortunate children of Pettis County and the surrounding area.

Wives On Trip To Belgium

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional wives have been singing "Take Me Along" and their husbands have been listening judging by the makeup of a U.S. contingent attending a NATO assembly in Brussels, Belgium.

The congressional delegation — for which $50,000 in tax money has been set aside — includes 7 senators, 12 representatives, 13 wives and 10 staff people, according to an Associated Press survey.

The State Department says nearly 70 people are making the trip — the Capitol Hill group of 42 plus administration officials and aides.

There was no breakdown on the number of administrative officials or whether any were taking wives at their own expense.

The government pays transportation and hotel bills for the congressmen as well as for North Atlantic Treaty Organization and administration officials designated to take the trip.

The congressional wives get a free ride on the three Air Force planes provided, but the State Department says they or their husbands must pay all other expenses.

The NATO assembly is an annual meeting of legislators from the 14 member nations. Senate and House delegates are appointed by the vice president and House speaker.

Members of Congress were criticized last week by Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., for making the trip instead of staying home to vote on emergency funds for the antipoverty program.

"It's just as important that some of these poor people get something for Thanksgiving," he said, "as it is for these people to get a good trip to Europe."

The State Department says about 25 took the House delegation plane last Friday, about 32 took the Senate delegation plane Saturday and about a dozen are expected to take a third flight today after a Senate vote on Social Security.

The transportation and hotel expenses for delegates are paid from NATO funds appropriated by Congress.

At least one delegate — Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., head of the Senate group — planned to return by commercial flight for the Social Security vote. There was no word on who would pay the fare.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., one of the House delegates who took his wife, said: "Because of diplomatic functions involving delegates and wives from the other nations, U.S. delegates are encouraged to bring their wives."

Nippy November

Maps show Weather Bureau's estimated forecasts of average temperature, precipitation through Dec. 15.

Cold in the east and progressively warmer to the west is the temperature outlook. Seasonal normal readings are expected only in the narrow Mississippi Valley corridor.

It should be a dry month for most of the country east of the Continental Divide except in the Great Lakes area where snow should bring precipitation up to normal levels.

Senior Executives Kill Off Ugly Americanism

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Ugly Americanism, a commodity that Chairman Mao and Gen. de Gaulle would like the rest of the world to believe is the chief export of the United States, is taking a beating all over the world, thanks to a dedicated group of retired executives who combine youthful enthusiasm with experience. They make the International Executive Service Corps America's most successful road show since "Hello Dolly."

The IESC, a nonprofit organization, offers the executives the opportunity to become some of the nation's most valuable exports in the foreign aid program. The idea has been so well-accepted that there are currently about 10 times as many would-be workers as there are projects. It's in matching the right problem-solver to the proper problem that the organization really excels.

According to Doug Murphey, a 60-year-old former vice president of a New York advertising agency, "Most of our people come in when they get bored with golf or they decide to get out of their wife's hair. In my case, I felt I could be useful in selling the free enterprise system. If you're successful in business you believe in the system and want to sell it."

Murphey, who works as an IESC recruiter, recently returned from Colombia, where he helped one of that country's largest firms get established in the direct mail advertising business.

This is the idea behind the IESC:

• A company in a developing country submits a problem to IESC. If the organization approves, a volunteer is chosen from a pool (about 4,000 men at present). Not every project is approved, however, and if IESC doesn't happen to have an expert on hand who can deal with the specific problem, the recruiters launch a manhunt of the sort made famous by the Canadian Mounties. They usually get their man.

• The executive chosen receives no salary but does get a living allowance (which averages about $1,000 a month and is paid by the company to which the executive is assigned), in addition to round-trip air transportation for the executive and his wife, if he gives in to her request to "Take me along." Most projects last less than four months.

So far the IESC has worked in more than 40 countries and has taken on 400 projects this year.

Charles H. Brown, vice president in charge of public relations, feels that 500 projects a year should be the limit.

"At that rate," says Brown, "we can maintain high quality and if there's one thing the man in charge here wants it's quality."

The man in charge in this case is Frank Pace Jr., and his credits mark him as the ideal man to run the organization. At one time or another Pace has been director of the Budget, secretary of the Army and chairman of the Board of General Dynamics.

Says one of Pace's staffers: "The best way to describe Frank is to say he's generally dynamic."

IESC came into being in 1964 with two basic objectives: to aid in the task of economic development in growing business abroad while providing an opportunity for retired businessmen to put their know-how to work where it could do the most good. Those goals remain the same today as IESC men work in Latin America, the Middle East, Africa and the Far East.

In addition to support from industry, individuals and foundations, IESC receives money through government grants and the Agency for International Development.

Lloyd E. Raymond, a 65-year-old metallurgist with 40 years' experience, is typical of the type of man attracted to IESC.

Raymond, who recently returned from Brazil, spent two months on his project acting as an industrial adviser and part-time psychologist.

"I cleared up the technical problems for the company I was assigned to in no time at all," recalls Raymond, "but I found that the real problem stemmed from the fact that the man who was running things lacked confidence in his own ability. He proved to be an excellent businessman, one of the best I've ever seen, but he'd just taken over the company after the death of the former president.

"The deceased man owned about 66 per cent of the business and was the type who insisted that he make every decision, no matter how minute. As a result, the man who took over after his death had reached a point where he hadn't made a decision in years and felt that he was incapable of making one. My biggest job was building up his confidence and showing him just how good he was. After that, everything came easy."

"Mr. Raymond's experience is quite typical," says Pace, "and it's the reason why we seek out well-rounded individuals for our program. Our men are specialists in their own fields, but they're adaptable enough to handle almost anything that might come up. They have to be because we can never be sure what the real problem will be until our man arrives on the scene. And then it's too late to decide we sent the wrong person."

LLOYD RAYMOND, who has 40 years' experience as a metallurgist, looks things over in Brazil, where he spent two months as an industrial adviser and part-time psychologist.

Unfortunate Pileup Of Programs

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — There was an unfortunate pile-up of special programs involving the three major networks Tuesday night, probably by coincidence. Television executives who decide such things usually manage somehow to keep their special programs out of conflict with their rivals.

NBC, it appears, was in the cat-bird's seat since it came along an hour earlier than the other two with a "world premiere" feature that consisted of two hours jammed with action.

By the time CBS' "Gauguin in Tahiti" and ABC's "One Night Stands" started, the hero and assorted kooks of "The Outsider" on NBC were so startled in murder, fights and psychedelic drugs that it required Herculean strength of character to slip that dial.

"The Outsider" quite obviously followed the lead of last season's "Ironside." Made as a one-shot TV feature, it also served to demonstrate its potential as a future series.

What it actually demonstrated is that the old-fashioned tough, cool private eye may be on his way back to the little screens. Darren McGavin, who may be remembered for the number of beatings he gave and absorbed when playing Mickey Spillane's "Mike Hammer" several seasons back, is playing approximately the same role again. This time his name is David Ross.

In the course of two hours he was garroted, beaten up viciously in several fist fights, knocked out by a dose of chloral hydrate, rendered unconscious by a head blow with a gun butt and almost incinerated in a burning automobile. He was, in fact, staggering manfully under his disabilities and on the verge of collapse during most of the two hours. But he played it cool, man, cool.

The program, pretty routine whodunit stuff, twice wandered up some curious side streets. The camera and sound were deliberately distorted, once to suggest how he felt when the knock-out drops were having their effect, and again to indicate how one of the heavies was making out during an LSD trip. No action show these days, of course, is complete without some reference to hippies and drugs.

With all the action and violence—and with the probable ratings the show will get against the comparatively quiet competition—"The Outsider" undoubtedly will be a series next season.

"Gauguin in Tahiti" was a handsome, leisurely production highlighted by photography of the French painter's work. Much of the show was filmed on the Pacific island to which he escaped to work, and Sir Michael Redgrave read portions of his letters and journal, serving to further illuminate the character of the artist. It was a show most rewarding to viewers with color sets.

"One Night Stands" followed

Britain's Hope Rests on Thin Air

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent

LONDON — (NEA) — With the recent unveiling here of the world's largest Hovercraft, which will carry 600 passengers across the English Channel on a cushion of air, the British have established a clear lead in the cushion-borne field.

The $12.6-million SNR-4, which has just been unveiled here, is four times bigger than any other Hovercraft yet built. It weighs 165 tons, is shaped like a flying saucer, and can deal easily with 12-foot waves when the English Channel cuts up ugly, according to its makers.

After engine and system checks, the giant SNR-4 will be put through extensive trials off the Isle of Wight before being turned over to its owner, Hoverlloyd of Sweden, which hopes to start a cross-Channel service next spring.

Like all previous Hovercraft, the SNR-4 is the brainchild of Christopher Cockerell, whose first model was made from a baking powder can and powered by a vacuum cleaner. The Hovercraft has come a long way since those early pioneering days.

Today, more than 200 inventions have been patented, stemming from the original Hovercraft air-cushion principle, and the manufacture of Hovercraft marine vehicles has been licensed in the United States and Japan, among other countries.

Among the more promising projects on drawing boards here are Hovertrains, Hoverbeds and lifting machinery, all of which are being financed by the quasi-governmental National Research and Development Corp.

The Hovertrain will be the costliest to develop but probably has the greatest commercial future. Track Hovercraft Ltd., a new company, has been set up to build a Hovertrain which will travel from 200 to 300 m.p.h. on a rectangular track using a silent linear induction motor. (The French are also experimenting with Hovertrains but using air-screw propulsion, which is noisy.)

The Hoverbed, in which the body floats on a cushion of warm, sterile air, is especially designed for the treatment of severe burn cases, and has been developed by doctors working with Hovercraft engineers.

The first two patients have already been successfully treated on Hoverbeds, and its backers are so enthusiastic that they are talking about Mark 2 and Mark 3 models.

One patient was burning waste paper in a gale force wind when his oily clothes caught fire; the other had burns over one-third of his body. Both were placed on Hoverbeds where their bodies were suspended on air cushions, and as a result the weeping areas of the burns dried rapidly.

The Hoverbed uses what is called a "segmented skirt," which is an outgrowth of the Hovercraft air cushion principle. In this case, a bag made of nylon and coated with synthetic rubber is hung inside the bed's rigid framework. The top of the bag consists of two rows of pockets, or skirt segments, which are inflated when warm, sterile air is pumped into them.

When the patient is placed on the bed the pockets form a seal along the side of his body, and fall away beneath it. The body is thus left solely supported on air.

The same segmented skirt principle was used recently in Manchester to move an oil storage tank 50 feet in diameter, and with a storage capacity of 300,000 gallons from one site to another.

The rubberized skirt was fitted around the base of the tank, and the segments inflated until the tank was floating on an air cushion. It was then easily towed away by a tractor. During the operation the giant tank traveled over two stretches of rough ground, a railway line, and a road, and was turned through 180 degrees at its new site.

Use of the skirt eliminates jacking up the tank and laying tracks for it to be moved on rollers. A bright future is predicted for the new invention.

The postwar history of British inventions has been a sad one, with scientists and engineers having to look to other countries for finance that was not forthcoming at home. This process has been reversed in the case of the Hovercraft, on which Britain stands to reap the full rewards of her inventive genius.

Hope For Slash In Deficits

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — By its late-session drive in Congress for tax boosts and cost cuts, the administration hopes to slash in half this year's prospective $29 billion deficit.

The deficit would be shrunk to roughly $15 billion—still one of the biggest splashes of red ink in U.S. history—by the fiscal package plan to be presented to the House Ways and Means Committee next Tuesday.

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler said Tuesday he and Budget Director Charles L. Schultz hope to convince the tax-writing committee "it is doubly important" in view of the international financial repercussions following Saturday's devaluation... the British pound, to "protect the dollar now, because the dollar is in the front lines."

The tax hike is needed, Fowler said, "to reduce substantially the existing deficit, minimize the risks of inflation, avoid escalating interest rates, avoid a credit crunch and reduce our deficit financing to manageable proportions."

Fowler told a news conference the budget target is still the one set by President Johnson in his Aug. 3 tax message—to reduce the red ink to a range of $14 billion to $18 billion.

To approach the lower figure, it became clear, it would be necessary for Congress to make the 10 per cent surcharge on individual income and corporation taxes effective Oct. 1.

The retroactive date will be in the plan delivered to the closed Ways and Means Committee hearing, Fowler said. He acknowledged that retroactivity would involve "administrative problems and difficulties."

Actually, a retroactive personal income tax boost is most unlikely, Congress consistently has rejected such proposals but in some instances has enacted retroactive corporate tax hikes.

It seemed likely, therefore, that the administration hopes for an Oct. 1 effective date for business firms and a Jan. 1, 1968 date for the start of bigger paycheck withholding from wage earners.

The White House has described its fiscal package—whose details still are under wraps—as providing expenditure cuts to match the anticipated $7 billion tax receipts dollar for dollar.

However, the cuts to be haggled over in the Nov. 28 meeting will add up to $4 billion. About $3 billion of the potential $29 billion deficit already has been erased tentatively.

SHAKESPEARE FROM PAPP

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph Papp, founder of New York's free Shakespeare Festival, is now preparing a new edition of some of the bard's plays.

"Shakespeare wrote for the stage, not for reading," Papp says, and so he is equipping the texts with highly personal accounts of how the dramas have been staged in Central Park. The series, being published by MacMillan, includes "Troilus and Cressida," "All's Well that Ends Well," "King John" and "Titus Andronicus."

To serve four, you'll need at least 1½ pounds of lean boneless meat when making a stew. Use at least two pounds if the meat is bone-in.

EXTRA-HEAVY TRAFFIC clogs a Tokyo street, but it's an out of the ordinary occurrence, crowded as the world's largest city is. Tanks lumbering along among the cars are participating in the 17th anniversary parade of the Japanese Self Defense Forces.

Negative Effect On Economy

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — England's devaluation of the pound is bound to have a negative effect on the U.S. economy including agriculture, a Kansas State University expert said today.

But Prof. Jack A. Richards of the university's economics department added that, barring further major developments, there is no reason to "push the panic button in U.S. financial markets."

Richards was asked to analyze effects of England devaluing the pound from $2.80 to $2.40 and raising from 6½ to 8 per cent the interest rate the Bank of England charges financial institutions.

He said the move was "triggered considerable uncertainty" in this country's economy but that it is too soon to make any detailed forecast on results.

It is obvious, Richards said, that English goods imported into the United States will sell for less while U.S. goods sent to England will cost more.

This, he said, should encourage English imports in this country which amounted to about $1.7 billion last year while cutting U.S. exports to England which came to some $2 billion last year.

"The effect on agriculture will generally be negative, since we import less agricultural commodities from nations that devalued than we export to them," said the KSU expert.

"To estimate the magnitude of this effect, however, it would be necessary to consider each commodity individually."

Richards explained factors which will have an effect on U.S. farm exports include consumer response to higher prices, import quotas of countries which devalued currency and alternative markets for U.S. agricultural production.

"As the situation now stands and assuming other industrial nations do not devalue," said Richards, "some effect will be felt in U.S. exports over coming months. At the same time, our consumers will also gain from lower priced imports."

"The net result must be appraised in the future, but there is no assurance that it will have any major negative reversal for the U.S. economy. Its effect on our trade balance, however, may be important."

The cultural program was given by Mrs. Newby, entitled, "Practical Men and the Good Life." She gave an outline of how the different inventions affect our lives and how much we take for granted the use of these particular inventions, in our daily living. Some inventions resulted from accident, as an example, the DuPont laboratories discovered Teflon while trying to invent something else. She stated, not all inventions come out of fancy laboratories and from gifted and educated people.

Individuals in every walk of life come up with useful ideas and inventions. In conclusion, Mrs. Newby stated, "Let's be aware to invent. Even though we are not scientists or research engineers, be aware to invent. The practical men are the ones who make this a good convenient life for us."

Refreshments were served by the hostess during the social hour that followed.

The 60th annual assembly of Rebekah Lodges of Sedalia District No. 31 met at the city building, Lincoln, with Mrs. Margaret Breshears, district president, presiding, under the supervision of Martha Chiolerio, president of the Rebekah State Assembly of Missouri.

Mrs. Ida Middleton gave the address of welcome and the morning session was devoted to routine business and reports from delegates from various lodges of the district.

A luncheon was served in the city building by the Lincoln Rebekah Lodge No. 822.

Officers for 1968 were elected during the afternoon and the school of instructions was held under the supervision of the state president, Mrs. Loreasa Mann sang the state presidents song accompanied by Delaine Upton, pianist.

Mr. Spock's Trek to Stardom

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — You never know about fame. Like the measles, it seems to strike unexpectedly, often in the strangest places. Currently, fame has come to Leonard Nimoy, old pointy-ears of Star Trek.

Even Nimoy finds what's happened to him hard to believe, but he isn't planning to send it back. He gets more fan mail than almost anybody else at NBC; he's the darling of the fan magazine set; he is constantly the target of adoring teenyboppers, who write him, phone him, accost him.

It's hard to understand. He's handsome enough, in a sensitive way, but hardly the usual raw material of idolhood. Basically, he's an actor and a good one. He is a settled family man, some years removed from teen-agedness, and not the flashy, moist-lipped sort the young girls usually select.

It was only a few years ago that Nimoy, to make ends meet, was getting up at 3 a.m. to deliver newspapers. The $100 a month he made supplemented the meager living he was eking out as an actor, and, with a wife and two children to support, he needed it.

Those days are gone now, on the cheerful wings of his success as Mr. Spock, the coolly efficient first officer aboard the Enterprise, Star Trek's interplanetary space ship. He is cashing in on that triumph—records, personal appearances—and the day after the series goes off, whenever that is, he will have his choice of movies or television series. As they say in the trade, he's hot.

He is adjusting to success with a minimum of traumas. The Nimoy's live in the same house they lived in before the lightning struck. The children go to the same schools. Leonard drives a used Buick to the studio. Sandy, his wife, buys more clothes than she did before, but that's about the extent of their frivolities.

The family likes boating. But they haven't gone out and bought a boat. As they did before, they go down to the ocean when the urge sweeps over them, and they rent a sailboat—$6 for the afternoon.

"If I had the time now that I had then," Nimoy says,

LEONARD NIMOY, he of the pointy-ears, is a big star these days, thanks to Star Trek. But Leonard, a Boston boy, is very down to earth in real life.

"maybe I'd buy a boat. But I don't. In the old days, I had the time, but not the money."

The old days—three or four years ago—was when things were rough. It has been an uphill-all-the-way struggle for Nimoy.

He's from Boston. His father, a Russian immigrant, is still a barber in Boston. He is naturally proud of his son's success, but regrets that he can no longer cut Leonard's hair.

"My father is an old-fashioned barber," he says. "When he cuts your hair, you know you've had a haircut. When I go home on a visit now, with this haircut I've got for the show, I can't let him touch my hair. He's very disappointed."

Leonard cut out for Los Angeles at 19, determined to act. He studied, he worked, he managed to get a few parts. But it was slow, tedously slow. He did his two years in the Army. During that time he got married and Sandy and he had their first child.

After his discharge, it was back to the old treadmill. He might have made $2,000 a year acting. Often he wanted to quit but Sandy talked him into sticking with it. He stuck. He worked at many jobs on the side, to pay the rent and the grocery bills.

Gradually, things got better. By the time Star Trek came along, he was known as a competent character actor around town. At the time of the Star Trek offer, he also could have taken a running part on Peyton Place—the Steven Cord role which James Douglas plays.

He made the right choice. Star Trek made him a big man in the world.

It'll Cost To Take out
Anger on Phone Book
NEW DELHI
(AP)—Carelessness with the Telephone directory is going to be costly in New Delhi.

Telephone officials have decided that people who turn in mutilated directories in exchange for new ones will have to pay instead of receiving the new one free.

The reason is that the telephone company sells the old directories to people who paste the pages into small paper bags. They refuse to buy mutilated directories.
